Civil Rights Organizations Amicus Brief

Amici are Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights Under the Law, Leadership Conference, and other civil rights organizations.

These organizations argue that the Supreme Court's abortion precedent affords substantial weight to the real-world circumstances of women affected by abortion restrictions. In evaluating Act 620, the Supreme Court should consider how it affects the real-life circumstances of women – particularly black women.

The organizations also argue that Act 620 would exacerbate structural economic barriers faced by low-income black women in Louisiana.
