DEFENDANTS’ PLEA TO THE JURISDICTION AND RESPONSE TO PLAINTIFFS’ APPLICATION FOR TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER

Defendants the State of Texas, Ken Paxton, in his official capacity as Attorney General of Texas, the Texas Medical Board (“TMB”), and Stephen Brint Carlton, in his official capacity as Executive Director of the Texas Medical Board, file this PLEA TO THE JURISDICTION AND RESPONSE TO PLAINTIFFS’ APPLICATION FOR TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER with the attached Appendix and respectfully offer the following in support:

Plaintiffs’ claim that “Kate Cox needs an abortion, and she needs it now” through relief from this Court is demonstrably false. Pls.’ Pet. ¶ 1. The Cox’s purport to be Dallas residents seeking to obtain an abortion in Houston. Id. at ¶ 6. Yet, at this very moment, they reside in Florida. See id. at Pls.’ Ver. Pgs. Florida’s medical exception to its abortion prohibition expressly includes pregnancies where a baby has a fatal fetal abnormality like trisomy 18. See Fla. Stat. § 390.0111(c). So, if Ms. Cox “needs an abortion and she needs it now,” she can do just that—in Florida, the state where she is currently located. No relief is necessary from this Court or any other.

This suit is a transparent end-run around the mandatory stay in the Zurawski matter, that has the same defendants, the same plaintiff (Dr. Karsan), the same facts (Dr. Karsan’s purported confusion about the scope of the medical exception), the same constitutional claims, and was argued last week before the Supreme Court of Texas. Pls. Pet. ¶ 2; Zurawski v. St. of Tex., Cause No. D-1-GN-23-000968 (353rd Dist. Ct., Travis Cty., Tex.).

A TRO, if granted, would not preserve the status quo of the parties until a TI hearing; it would instead provide Plaintiffs with the ultimate relief they seek—an abortion—without the benefit of the Court considering any evidence and with permanent effect on the life of Ms. Cox’s baby.

Plaintiffs’ petition fails to allege facts showing that Ms. Cox qualifies for the medical exception to Texas’s statutory prohibitions on abortion. Ms. Cox has not alleged that she has been diagnosed with a life-threatening medical condition aggravated by, caused by, or arising from a pregnancy. See generally Pls.’ Pet. Nor has Ms. Cox alleged that any medical condition places her at risk of death or poses a serious risk of substantial impairment of a major bodily function unless the abortion is performed or induced. Id. Similarly, Dr. Karsan fails to even allege the statutory requirement that there exists a condition that, in her “reasonable medical judgment” necessitates an abortion. Instead, Dr. Karson alleges only that she has a “good faith belief” (a subjective standard not sufficient under the law) that Ms. Cox meets the medical exception requirements. Id. at 138–39. By Plaintiffs’ own pleadings, their allegations are insufficient to place them within the scope of the exception to Texas’s abortion laws. See id. at ¶ 130 (admitting that Ms. Cox’s life is not imminently at risk from any medical condition related to her pregnancy). What’s more, Ingrid Skop, M.D., a medical expert relied on by both parties in this suit, see id. at ¶¶ 115-27, has reviewed

Plaintiffs’ petition and determined that, as pled, Plaintiffs have not alleged facts sufficient to show that they fall within the medical exception, App’x 2. Plaintiffs have failed to plead that Ms. Cox qualifies for the medical exception to Texas’ abortion prohibition and are consequently not entitled to any relief. Tex. Health & Safety Code § 170A.002(b)(2).

Plaintiffs’ suit and request for emergency relief requires them to establish—at a minimum—that they face an imminent threat of enforcement. Yet they fail to even allege as much. Plaintiffs’ purported fear is not based on any statement or action taken by the Attorney General, the Texas Medical Board, the Executive Director, or any other person in the State of Texas, and their orchestrated attempts to manufacture standing where there is none are insufficient. Their claims are barred by sovereign immunity, and they are unlikely to succeed on the merits. This Court should dismiss Plaintiffs’ claims for lack of subject matter jurisdiction and the Court should deny their TRO Application.

BACKGROUND

A medical exception exists to Texas’ general prohibition on abortion when a physician, in their reasonable medical judgment, concludes that a pregnant female “has a life-threatening physical condition aggravated by, caused by, or arising from a pregnancy that places the female at risk of death or poses a serious risk of substantial impairment of a major bodily function unless the abortion is performed or induced.” Tex. Health & Safety Code § 170A.002(b)(2). When this exception applies, the physician is required to perform “the abortion in a manner that, in the exercise of reasonable medical judgment, provides the best opportunity for the unborn child to survive unless” that manner would create “a greater risk of the pregnant female’s death” or “a serious risk of substantial impairment of a major bodily function of the pregnant female.” Tex. Health & Safety Code § 170A.002(b)(3). Texas law removes from its definition of abortion any act done “with the intent to (A) save the life or preserve the health of an unborn child; (B) remove a dead, unborn child whose death was caused by spontaneous abortion; or (C) remove an ectopic pregnancy.” Tex. Health & Safety Code § 245.002(1). It is an affirmative defense that the physician exercised their reasonable medical judgment when choosing to perform the abortion in response to an ectopic pregnancy or a previable premature rupture of membranes (“PPROM”). Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.552 (eff. Sept. 1, 2023), Tex. Occ. Code § 164.055(c) (eff. Sept. 1, 2023), Tex. Penal Code § 9.35 (eff. Sept. 1, 2023) (collectively, H.B. 3058).

Kate Cox

Plaintiff Kate Cox is a pregnant female who claims to reside in Dallas, Texas. Pls.’ Pet. ¶¶ 1, 6. However, the Cox’s Verification pages of Plaintiffs’ Original Petition show that they are currently residing in sunny Saint Lucie County, Florida. Id. at Ver. Pg. Ironically and particularly relevant to this cause of action, Florida expressly permits abortions in the case of pregnancies where the child has a fatal fetal abnormality. Fla. Stat. § 390.0111(c).

On November 28, 2023, Ms. Cox allegedly learned that her child was diagnosed with the life limiting condition of Trisomy 18. Pls.’ Pet. ¶¶ 2, 17. Ms. Cox wishes to terminate her pregnancy because her child was diagnosed with Trisomy 18. Id. at ¶ 21. However, Ms. Cox has not alleged that she “has a life-threatening physical condition aggravated by, caused by, or arising from a pregnancy that places the female at risk of death or poses a serious risk of substantial impairment of a major bodily function unless the abortion is performed or induced” as is required to qualify for an abortion under Texas’ emergency medical exception. Tex. Health & Safety Code § 170A.002(b)(2); see generally Pls.’ Pet.

Ms. Cox allegedly had elevated glucose in October but did not receive a diagnosis of gestational diabetes. Id. at ¶ 13. It is not without import to note that Ms. Cox also reported elevated glucose levels in a prior pregnancy during which she unsurprisingly did not seek an abortion because that child did not have the same diagnoses. There are no facts pled which indicate that Ms. Cox’s elevated glucose levels in October are a life-threatening physical condition, nor that they place her at risk of death or substantial impairment of a major bodily function. To the contrary, her decision to seek an abortion during this pregnancy based on “elevated glucose” when she had not similarly sought in the past, merely supports the assertion that there is no true medical emergency.

Ms. Cox also alleges she experienced intermittent cramping, diarrhea, and mild fluid leaking earlier in November. Id. at ¶¶ 15, 16. Each time Ms. Cox was allegedly examined for these complaints, she was sent home without further incident and because both she and the baby were stable. Id. There are no facts pled which demonstrate that these symptoms were life-threatening physical conditions, that they are currently happening, nor that they place Ms. Cox at risk of death or substantial impairment of a major bodily function.

Finally, Ms. Cox allegedly has a slightly elevated risk of uterine rupture if she delivers the baby vaginally because she’s had two prior C-sections. Id. at ¶ 18; see also Habak PJ, Kole M., Vaginal Birth After Cesarean Delivery, StatPearls Publishing (Jul 17, 2023), available online from <https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/books/NBK507844/> (“[T]he rate of uterine rupture is felt to increase with increasing number of prior cesarean sections. With 1 prior [C-section], the rate of uterine rupture is less than 1%; whereas, the rate is slightly higher with 2 prior [C-]sections at 1% to 2%. Most practitioners consider patients with up to two prior [C-sections] deliveries to be candidates for [vaginal delivery], this recommendation is also endorsed by the American College of Obstetrics and Gynecology.”). But the normality of C-sections is widely known,¹ as is the increasing commonality of vaginal birth following C-section.² There are no facts pled which demonstrate that Ms. Cox is at any more of a risk, let alone life-threatening, than the countless women who give birth every day with similar medical histories.

Justin Cox

Mr. Cox is married to Ms. Cox. Id. at ¶ 25. He alleges that he fears that he will face liability under S.B. 8 if he assists Ms. Cox with obtaining an abortion. Id. at ¶¶ 134-35.

Damla Karsan, M.D.

Dr. Karsan is a board-certified OB/GYN in private practice at Comprehensive Women’s Healthcare in Houston, TX. Id. at ¶ 28. She is a physician plaintiff in Zurawski and has provided testimony that she holds privileges at Women’s Hospital.³

Women’s Hospital will only allow Dr. Karsan to perform abortions pursuant to the medical exception after she consults with a second physician, obtains their concurrence that the patient qualifies, and obtains approval from hospital administration.

Dr. Karsan allegedly met Ms. Cox and reviewed her medical records. Pls.’ Pet. ¶ 36. There are no facts pled which demonstrate they established a physician-patient relationship, nor that Dr. Karsan has conducted any physical examination of Ms. Cox. See generally Pls.’ Pet. Dr. Karsan subjectively believes that Ms. Cox qualifies for the medical exception, despite failing to identify

Ms. Cox's life-threatening physical condition or explain how the condition places Ms. Cox at risk of death or poses a serious risk of substantial impairment to a major bodily function if an abortion is not performed. Id. at ¶ 139. There are no facts alleged that Dr. Karsan has determined Ms. Cox qualifies for the medical exception in the "exercise of [her] reasonable medical judgment" (an objective standard) as required by Texas law. Tex. Health & Safety Code § 170A.002(b)(2); see generally Pls.' Pet.

There are no facts pled which indicate that Dr. Karsan has consulted with any other physicians at Women's Hospital to obtain a second opinion (but if she had and they agreed with her determination then there would be no need to file this lawsuit), see generally, id., although Dr. Karsan purports to have discussed Ms. Cox's case with Women's Hospital administration and they've advised that she may be able to perform an abortion on Ms. Cox if the Court enters a TRO. Id. at ¶ 142. Dr. Karsan purports to sue "on her own behalf, on behalf of herself, her staff, nurses, pharmacists, agents, and patients." Id. at ¶ 37.

RESPONSE TO THE APPLICATION FOR TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER

I. Plaintiffs cannot obtain permanent relief through a TRO.

The purpose of a temporary restraining order ("TRO") is to preserve the status quo of the parties, which the Supreme Court of Texas has defined as "the last, actual, peaceable, non-contested status which preceded the pending controversy." In re Newton, 146 S.W.3d 648, 651–52 (Tex. 2004) (quoting Janus Films, Inc. v. City of Fort Worth, 163 Tex. 616, 358 S.W.2d 589, 589 (1962) (per curiam)). "A TRO is entered when a motion for temporary injunction is pending." Fernandez v. Pimentel, 360 S.W.3d 643, 646 (Tex. App.—El Paso 2012, no pet.) (holding that a TRO's purpose is to "preserve the status quo pending a ruling on the motion for a temporary injunction"); *see also Brines v. McIlhane*y, 596 S.W.2d 519, 523 (Tex.1980). A TRO is merely a precursor to a temporary injunction and does not constitute a ruling on the merits. Pimentel, 360 S.W.3d at 646 (citing Iranian Muslim Org. v. City of San Antonio, 615 S.W.2d 202, 208 (Tex.1981)). By its nature, temporary injunctive relief is intended to be just that—temporary—and “may not be used to obtain an advance ruling on the merits.” Iranian Muslim Org., 615 S.W.2d at 208 (emphasis added); see also Pub. Util. Comm’n v. Water Servs., Inc., 709 S.W.2d 765, 767 (Tex.App.-Austin 1986, no writ) (“The ... recognition that a temporary injunction hearing is not the same as a hearing on the merits echoes throughout our jurisprudence.”). In Newton, the Court found that the district court erred when it made a “final, non-appealable adjudication” by granting a TRO. Id. at 652. Further, they held that because TROs are “generally not appealable,” and there is otherwise no “adequate appellate remedy,” a mandamus was warranted. Id. at 652–53.

Here, Plaintiffs seek a temporary restraining order authorizing Dr. Karsan to perform an abortion on Ms. Cox. See Pls.’ Pet. at ¶ 4; Pls.’ Prop. TRO at 3. That is not temporary relief, nor does it fulfill the purpose of a TRO by preserving the status quo. Performance of an abortion on Ms. Cox constitutes the ending of a life; an action that cannot be undone—there is no other relief which could possibly be more final or unappealable. Rather, the status quo here—in accordance with the Court’s definition above—is prior to Dr. Karsan subjectively concluding that Ms. Cox qualified for the medical exception. That is the “last, actual, peaceable, non-contested status” and that is the status that must be preserved here pending a final determination on the merits. Instead, Plaintiffs ask this Court to determine whether Cox qualifies for an abortion under Texas’ emergency medical exception—a determination as to the merits of the claim and asks this Court to do something even Dr. Karsan won’t—make an objective medical determination that Ms. Cox qualifies for the medical exception. A request for such a determination is improper and is not in conformance with Texas law. Accordingly, the relief requested by Plaintiffs exceeds the scope allowable through the granting of a TRO and should be denied.

PLEA TO THE JURISDICTION

A plea to the jurisdiction challenges the court's authority to determine the subject matter of the controversy. Bland Indep. Sch. Dist. v. Blue, 34 S.W.3d 547, 553–54 (Tex. 2000). Subject matter jurisdiction is “never presumed and cannot be waived.” Tex. Ass’n of Bus. v. Tex. Air Ctr. Bd., 852 S.W.2d 440, 443–44 (Tex. 1993). “When a plea to the jurisdiction challenges the pleadings, [the court] determine[s] if the pleader has alleged facts that affirmatively demonstrate the court’s jurisdiction to hear the cause.” Tex. Dep’t of Parks & Wildlife v. Miranda, 133 S.W.3d 217, 226 (Tex. 2004). “If the pleadings affirmatively negate the existence of jurisdiction, then a plea to the jurisdiction may be granted without allowing the plaintiffs an opportunity to amend.” Id. at 227.

I. Plaintiffs lack standing to bring this suit.

“Subject matter jurisdiction requires that the party bringing the suit have standing, that there be a live controversy between the parties, and that the case be justiciable.” State Bar of Tex. v. Gomez, 891 S.W.2d 243, 245 (Tex. 1994). “A court has no jurisdiction over a claim made by a plaintiff who lacks standing to assert it.” Heckman v. Williamson Cnty., 369 S.W.3d 137, 150 (Tex. 2012). Standing “require[s] an actual, not merely hypothetical or generalized grievance.” Brown v. Todd, 53 S.W.3d 297, 302 (Tex. 2001). To the extent not contradicted by state law, Texas courts “look to the more extensive jurisprudential experience of the federal courts on the subject [of standing] for any guidance it may yield.” Id.

To have standing, each plaintiff must meet three elements: (1) the plaintiff must have suffered an injury in fact—an invasion of a legally protected or cognizable interest that is both concrete and particularized and actual or imminent, not conjectural or hypothetical; (2) there must be a causal connection between the injury and the conduct complained of—that is, the injury must be fairly traceable to the challenged action of the defendant and not the independent action of a third party not before the court; and (3) it must be likely, and not merely speculative, that the injury will be redressed by a favorable decision. Lujan v. Defs. of Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 560–61 (1992); Heckman, 369 S.W.3d at 155.

A. Plaintiffs have suffered no injury in fact.

The first element of standing in an action seeking only declaratory and injunctive relief requires an alleged continuing or threatened future harm that is “concrete and particularized, actual or imminent, not hypothetical.” DaimlerChrysler Corp. v. Inman, 252 S.W.3d 299, 304–05 (Tex. 2008); Stringer v. Whitley, 942 F.3d 715, 721 (5th Cir. 2019) (injunctive relief “cannot conceivably remedy any past wrong”); Etan Indus., Inc. v. Lehmann, 359 S.W.3d 620, 624 (Tex. 2011) (declaratory relief is not available to address past harms).

1. Ms. Cox lacks standing because the alleged threatened injuries are not imminent.

Ms. Cox contends that she has standing in this suit because: (1) she is pregnant; (2) she might develop medical complications during delivery; and (3) abortion is always safer than delivering a baby. Id. at ¶ 18-19.

First, Ms. Cox’s alleged threatened injuries—by her own admission—are not imminent. “A party facing prospective injury has standing to sue where the threatened injury is real, immediate, and direct.” Davis v. Fed. Election Comm’n, 554 U.S. 724, 734 (2008) (citing Los Angeles v. Lyons, 461 U.S. 95, 102 (1983)). Harm is imminent if it is relatively certain to occur rather than being remote and speculative. Limon v. State, 947 S.W.2d 620, 625 (Tex. Ct. App.—Austin 1997, no writ); DaimlerChrysler Corp., 252 S.W.3d at 304–05. Here, Ms. Cox outright admits that her threatened injuries are not imminent. See Pls.’ Pet. ¶ 130 (“While Ms. Cox’s life may not be imminently at risk, she is at a high risk for many serious medical conditions that pose risks to her future fertility and can become suddenly and unexpectedly life-threatening.”) (emphasis added). The Court need go no further. Ms. Cox does not face an imminent injury and therefore she lacks standing.

Second, Ms. Cox’s alleged threatened injuries are not concrete. Ms. Cox contends that she faces a “high risk” of complications during delivery because she’s had two prior C-sections. Pls.’ Pet. ¶18. This is misleading. Ms. Cox’s so-called “high risk” is slight—with at most a 4% chance of occurring depending on the method of delivery. See Habak PJ, Kole M., Vaginal Birth After Cesarean Delivery, StatPearls Publishing (Jul 17, 2023), available online from <https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/books/NBK507844/> (“With 1 prior [C-section], the rate of uterine rupture is less than 1%; whereas, the rate is slightly higher with 2 prior [C-]sections at 1% to 2%. Most practitioners consider patients with up to two prior [C-sections] deliveries to be candidates for [vaginal delivery], this recommendation is also endorsed by the American College of Obstetrics and Gynecology.”); see also Rebecca Klahr, et al., Maternal Morbidity with Repeated Cesarean Deliveries, Am J Perinatol (Oct 2023), available online from <https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/34583410/> (showing C-section complication rates of up to 4% for women with two prior C-sections without a placenta previa diagnoses and concluding that “maternal morbidity increases with increase [C-sections] but the absolute risks remain low.” (emphasis added)). A 4% chance that Ms. Cox might experience complications while delivering her child to term is insufficiently concrete to establish standing. Cf. Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife, 504

U.S. at 564 (holding that plaintiffs’ “someday” intentions to return to locations where they might be deprived of the opportunity to observe endangered animals did not support a finding of the actual or imminent injury required.).

Third, Ms. Cox’s alleged threatened injuries are not particularized. “In general, regardless of the claim asserted, a plaintiff must show that [s]he has suffered a particularized injury distinct from the general public.” Perez v. Turner, 653 S.W.3d 191, 198 (Tex. 2022), reh’g denied (Oct. 21, 2022) (quoting Andrade v. Venable, 372 S.W.3d 134, 137 (Tex. 2012)). Ms. Cox claims that she is threatened with injury because delivering a baby is always riskier than aborting a pregnancy. But this threatened injury is indistinct from every other pregnant woman in Texas. See generally Pls. Pet. ¶¶ 6-24, 129-133; S. Texas Water Auth. v. Lomas, 223 S.W.3d 304, 307 (Tex. 2007) (plaintiff lacked standing where he did not allege that he was treated differently than any other city resident); see also Garcia v. City of Willis, 593 S.W.3d 201, 206–08 (Tex. 2019) (holding appellant lacked standing to bring prospective claims regarding the constitutionality of red-light traffic cameras because he “st[ood] in the same shoes as any other citizen who might potentially be fined for running a red light” and therefore “lack[ed] the particularized interest for standing that prospective relief requires”). Ms. Cox has, therefore, failed to show standing where she has alleged only generalized grievances indistinguishable from every other pregnant Texan.

Fourth, Ms. Cox’s alleged threatened injuries are purely hypothetical. District Courts “do not give advice or decide cases upon speculative, hypothetical or contingent situations.” Camarena v. Texas Emp. Comm’n, 754 S.W.2d 149, 151 (Tex. 1988) (citing Coalson v. City Council of Victoria, 610 S.W.2d 744 (Tex.1980)). Ms. Cox cannot conjure standing by imagining that she will experience complications at some point during her pregnancy or delivery. Id. She is not experiencing any medical complications and there are no allegations that she is likely to experience complications from carrying her pregnancy to term. Because the alleged threatened injuries are hypothetical, this Court should find that Ms. Cox lacks standing. Tex. Ass’n of Bus. v. Tex. Air Control Bd., 852 S.W.2d 440, 444 (Tex. 1993).

2. Dr. Karsan lacks standing because “confusion” is not a harm.

Dr. Karsan contends that she subjectively believes Ms. Cox qualifies for the medical exception to Texas’ abortion laws, but “is unsure how close to death her patients need to be before abortion is permitted under Texas law.” Pls. Pet. ¶ 138-40. There are no allegations that Ms. Cox is near death. She is, instead, enjoying a sunny vacation in Florida—which is a remote from near death as one can imagine.

The Texas Supreme Court has held that “confusion” is not an actionable harm sufficient to confer standing. In re Abbott, 601 S.W.3d 802 (Tex. 2020). In Abbott, a group of judges challenged an executive order suspending statutes authorizing trial judges to release jail inmates with violent histories. Id. at 805 (Tex. 2020). The judges argued that they were injured because the challenged executive order “sowed confusion” among the parties in their courts. Id. at 811. The Texas Supreme Court rejected this contention, holding that “if the parties who appear before a judge are confused about the law that applies to their case, the remedy lies in the judge, whose job is to resolve such confusion to the best of his or her ability, based on the applicable law.” Id. The Texas Supreme Court continued, “[t]hat the judge may also be confused about applicable law does not give the judge standing to sue the lawmaker. The judge’s job is to determine and apply the law to individual cases, even if doing so is difficult.” Id. (emphasis added).

Similarly, that Dr. Karsan may be confused about the scope of the medical exception does not give her standing to challenge the law because it is her job to determine whether Ms. Cox qualifies—even if doing so is difficult. Tex. Health & Safety Code §170A.002. Making difficult medical decisions is a part of practicing medicine and, irrespective of abortion, always has the potential to result in civil liability, Tex. Civ. Prac. Rem. Code Ch. 74, criminal penalties, see Duntsch v. State, 568 S.W.3d 193, 198 (Tex. App. 2018), or administrative discipline, Tex. Occ. Code § 164.001. Abortion is no different.

No medical exception involving discretion can eliminate all ambiguity. The medical exception contained in Texas’ abortion laws is intentionally crafted with an appropriate broadness, to give physicians the discretion to perform abortions that they have determined, based on their education, experience, and expertise, are medically necessary. Dr. Karsan has previously testified that, as written, the medical exception is confusing because it is too broad. App’x 56-57 at 50:2-51:11. She’s admitted that there is no medical exception that can be crafted without leaving some degree of confusion. App’x 62-63, 56:23-57:4 (testifying that no matter how the medical exception is written, “I think it’s near impossible to assure there won’t be some confusing or unclear cases.”). This Court should find, as the Texas Supreme Court did in Abbott, that “confusion” is not a sufficient harm to establish standing.

Finally, Dr. Karsan lacks standing where the evidence disproves the alleged threatened injuries. Dr. Karsan previously testified that she first became harmed by the medical exception in 2021 with the passage of S.B. 8—despite the same medical exception having existed for decades. See Tex. Health & Safety Code § 170.002 (1999); App’x 19 at 13:5-8. Karsan testified that she never used the medical exception prior to 2021, id. at 10:11-12:1, that she does not know what the prior medical exception was before S.B. 8, ibid., nor whether it has changed, id. at 12:2-24. She testified that the medical exception was “irrelevant” to her, prior to S.B. 8. Id. at 63, 57:18-23. Since the passage of S.B. 8, she has not performed an abortion because she “was able to find alternate care for [her] patients, most of whom have means” and “do[es] not want to get crossways with the law.” App’x 19-20, 13:16-14:2. She was unable to identify a single instance where her fear of enforcement or her confusion about the law actually prevented her from performing an abortion; instead, she testified that she has only encountered a handful of cases she thought might qualify and, in the one case she thought did qualify, she did not perform an abortion because her colleague disagreed. See id. generally. In other words, Dr. Karsan’s testimony demonstrates that she is not confused, and therefore is not likely to encounter a case— certainly not imminently— where she is confused and is subsequently unable to provide medically necessary care due to the threat of repercussion.

Dr. Karsan contends that she has identified a case that she subjectively believes qualifies for the medical exception, but she claims that she is uncertain how close to death Ms. Cox must be before she can perform the abortion. Pls. Pet. ¶ 140. This is a ludicrous claim. There are no allegations in this suit indicating any degree of closeness to death by Ms. Cox on account of her pregnancy. This frivolous assertion of harm is insufficient to establish standing.

B. Plaintiffs cannot show that the alleged threatened injuries are fairly traceable to Defendants.

The second element of standing requires that the plaintiff’s alleged injury be “fairly traceable” to the defendant’s conduct because “a court [can] act only to redress injury that fairly can be traced to the challenged action of the defendant, and not injury that results from the independent action of some third party not before the court.” Meyers v. JDC/Firethorne, Ltd., 548 S.W.3d 477, 485 (Tex. 2018) (quoting Heckman v. Williamson Cnty., 369 S.W.3d 137, 155 (Tex. 2012)).

Women's Hospital policy is that Dr. Karsan can perform an abortion pursuant to the medical exception only after obtaining a second opinion from a physician who must also agree that the patient qualifies for the medical exception, and subsequent approval from hospital administration is obtained. App'x 25-28, 19:3-22:13.

This testimony is fatal to Plaintiffs' claims. Plaintiffs cannot show that Dr. Karsan's "confusion" about how when she can perform an abortion is "fairly traceable" to Defendants because it is self-inflicted and any causal connection is broken by the independent actions of third-party hospitals, hospital attorneys, and Dr. Cox's physician colleagues.

First, Dr. Cox's so-called "confusion" is self-inflicted. An injury is self-inflicted so as to defeat standing if 'the injury is so completely due to the plaintiff's own fault as to break the causal chain.'" Backer ex rel. Freedman v. Shah, 788 F.3d 341, 344 (2d Cir. 2015). The Supreme Court has held that a plaintiff "cannot manufacture standing merely by inflicting harm on themselves based on their fears of hypothetical future harm that is not certainly impending." Clapper v. Amnesty Int'l. USA, 568 U.S. 398, 416-18 (2013). "If the law were otherwise, an enterprising plaintiff would be able to secure a lower standard for Article III standing simply by making an expenditure based on a nonparanoid fear." Id. at 416. Here, Dr. Karsan claims that she is confused about how close to death Ms. Cox must be before she can perform an abortion. Pls. Pet. ¶ 140. Yet her "confusion" is self-inflicted. She previously testified that, other than reading the law, the only other source she's "relied on" for guidance about the medical exception is "the hospital attorneys." App'x 29-30, 23:23-24:4. Yet she went on to testify that she's never spoken with any hospital attorneys about the medical exception, either generally, or in the two cases she thought might qualify. Id. at 30:1-19; 47, 41:2-5. Women's Hospital has attorneys and other administrative staff available to provide guidance to medical providers about the scope and parameters of current laws, and to provide them with clarification, specifically, in individual cases. In this suit, there are no facts pled which illustrate that Dr. Cox attempted to resolve her confusion by consulting with Women's Hospital's attorneys to determine whether Ms. Cox qualified for the medical exception. See generally Pls.' Pet.

Second, even if Plaintiffs could show a link between Dr. Karsan's "confusion" and Defendants' enforcement authority, this chain is broken by the independent actions of third parties not before this Court. Specifically, the hospitals' policies and procedures, hospital attorneys, and the required second opinions of colleagues are the reason that Dr. Karsan cannot perform an abortion on Ms. Cox pursuant to the medical exception—not any threatened enforcement action by Defendants. App'x 25-27, 19:3-22:13. If any of Dr. Karsan's colleagues at Women's Hospital agreed with her that Ms. Cox qualified for the medical exception, there would be no need to file this suit since Women's Hospital would permit her to perform the abortion pursuant to their policy. Consequently, Plaintiffs have failed to establish the necessary traceability element of standing.

C. Plaintiffs alleged harms will not be redressed by a favorable decision.

Even if Plaintiffs alleged an imminent, concrete and particularized, injury that was fairly traceable to Defendants, they still lack standing because the requested relief would not redress their alleged injuries. Heckman v. Williamson Cnty., 369 S.W.3d 137, 155 (Tex. 2012) (the third element of standing requires that the plaintiff's alleged injury be "likely to be redressed by the requested relief...").

First, the Court cannot issue an advisory opinion addressing Ms. Cox's hypothetical future injuries. The distinctive feature of an advisory opinion is that rather than remedying an actual or imminent harm, the judgment addresses only a hypothetical injury. See Allen v. Wright, 468 U.S.

737, 751 (1984). Texas courts have no jurisdiction to render such opinions. Texas Ass’n of Bus. v. Texas Air Control Bd., 852 S.W.2d 440, 444 (Tex. 1993). Ms. Cox is not currently experiencing any ongoing complications that are life-threatening. She has a slight, perhaps 4% chance, of experiencing some a medical complication during delivery which is nearly five months away. Her alleged threatened harm is wholly conjectural and this Court does not have the power to rule on hypothetical scenarios by issuing advisory opinions.

Second, Plaintiffs alleged injuries are not redressable by a favorable decision because the Court cannot rewrite state law. The UDJA, in pertinent part, allows a person whose rights are affected by a statute to “have determined any question of construction or validity arising under the [statute] and obtain a declaration of rights, status, or other legal relations thereunder.” Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 37.004(a). Plaintiffs ask this Court to ignore the objective reasonableness standard in state law and, instead, adopt a subjective good faith standard. Plaintiffs have not and cannot cite to any legal authority permitting the Court to enter such an order. The decision, instead, is binary; the medical exception is either valid or invalid as applied to Plaintiffs. Jennings v. Rodriguez, 138 S. Ct. 830, 843 (2018) (“Spotting a constitutional issue does not give a court the authority to rewrite a statute as it pleases.”). Plaintiffs’ alleged injuries are not redressable because the Court cannot grant the relief requested by changing the law’s objective standard to a subjective standard.

Third, Plaintiffs alleged injuries are not likely to be redressed by a favorable decision rewriting the medical exception because it would still leave medical providers confused and uncertain. There is no guarantee, or even likelihood, that this Court can issue a judgment “clarifying” the medical exception in a manner that will be any less confusing to medical providers.

No medical exception adopted by this Court will satisfy Plaintiffs. The new medical exception sought by Plaintiffs is even broader than the current medical exception that Dr. Karsan previously testified is already too broad. App’x 56-57 at 50:2-51:11. Dr. Karsan previously admitted that no matter what medical exception is adopted, “it’s near impossible to assure there won’t be some confusing or unclear cases.” Id. at 62, 57:4. This Court need go no further. The relief sought is impossible to grant; therefore, Plaintiffs lack standing.

Fourth, Plaintiffs alleged injuries will not be redressed because the Court cannot issue declaratory nor injunctive relief relating to the enforcement of the Texas Penal Code. The law is well-settled that generally a court exercising equitable jurisdiction in a suit (as opposed to criminal jurisdiction) cannot render naked declarations of rights, status, or other legal relationships arising under a penal statute or ordinance. See, e.g., State v. Morales, 869 S.W.2d 941, 945 (Tex.1994) (holding that trial court exercising equitable jurisdiction in civil declaratory judgment action did not have jurisdiction to declare penal code section unconstitutional); City of La Marque v. Braskey, 216 S.W.3d 861, 863 (Tex.App.-Houston [1st Dist.] 2007, pet. denied). So, this Court lacks jurisdiction to render a decision in this case because any ruling will necessarily impact the enforcement of Texas’ criminal laws relating to abortion.

D. Dr. Karsan cannot assert third-party standing on behalf of their patients or other physicians.

The standing requirement in Texas “derives from the Texas Constitution’s separation of powers among the departments of government, which denies the judiciary the authority to decide issues in the abstract, and from the Open Courts provision, which provides court access only to a ‘person for an injury done him.’” DaimlerChrysler Corp., 252 S.W.3d at 304 (quoting Tex. Const. art. I, § 13). Thus, to demonstrate standing under Texas law, a plaintiff must be personally aggrieved, and his alleged injury must be concrete and particularized, actual or imminent, not hypothetical. Id. at 304–05. If a plaintiff lacks an actual or threatened injury, he is not “personally aggrieved,” has no personal stake in the litigation, and lacks standing. M.D. Anderson Cancer Ctr. v. Novak, 52 S.W.3d 704, 707–08 (Tex. 2001).

Injuries to others—who are not plaintiffs—typically do not suffice to create standing. As the Supreme Court has stated, “the standing inquiry begins with determining whether the plaintiff has personally been injured, that is, ‘he must plead facts demonstrating that he, himself (rather than a third party or the public at large), suffered the injury.’” Meyers v. JDC/Firethorne, Ltd., 548 S.W.3d 477, 485 (Tex. 2018) (quoting Heckman, 369 S.W.3d at 155); accord Kowalski v. Tesmer, 543 U.S. 125, 129 (2004) (noting that to have standing in a typical lawsuit, a litigant must assert his own rights, not those of a third party). When challenging the constitutionality of a statute a plaintiff must (1) “suffer some actual or threatened restriction under that statute,” and (2) “contend that the statute unconstitutionally restricts the plaintiff’s rights, not somebody else’s.” Tex. Workers’ Comp. Comm’n v. Garcia, 893 S.W.2d 504, 518 (Tex. 1995); see also Barshop v. Medina Cnty. Underground Water Conservation Dist., 925 S.W.2d 618, 626 (Tex. 1996) (stating “the plaintiff must contend that the statute unconstitutionally restricts the plaintiff’s own rights”).

The few instances in Texas law in which someone is permitted to sue for another’s injuries are supported by statute or rule. Texas law gives parents the right to represent their children in court. Tex. Fam. Code § 151.001(a)(7). Certain personal injury actions survive in favor of heirs or an estate’s legal representative. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.021(b). The Legislature has also provided for derivative standing in some circumstances involving corporations. See, e.g., Tex. Bus. Org. Code §§ 20.002(c)(1), 21.552, 153.402. And Texas law recognizes class actions, Tex. R. Civ.

P. 42, although the named plaintiff must still be personally injured, Heckman, 369 S.W.3d at 151.

None of those situations exist here. Thus, under Texas law, Dr. Karsan cannot assert the rights of her patients and coworkers. To the extent she is attempting to assert that Texas' abortion laws restrict their rights, they have no legal right to perform abortions. Tex. Health & Safety Code Chs. 170-71. Furthermore, Defendants have not taken nor threatened any enforcement action against either of them individually. Because they have not been personally injured by Defendants, Plaintiffs lack standing to bring those claims, and the claims must be dismissed.

The federal third-party standing doctrine is inapplicable. The United States Supreme Court has created an exception to the general article III requirement in the U.S. Constitution that a litigant must assert his own injury: litigants may assert the rights of third parties when (1) the litigant has “a close relationship” with the third party; and (2) some “hindrance” affects the third party's ability to protect her own interests. Kowalski, 543 U.S. at 130 (citations omitted). But unlike its federal counterpart, the Texas Supreme Court has never recognized a general third-party standing doctrine that parties may (attempt to) apply to any given situation. And doing so here would be contrary to the Texas Supreme Court's repeated statements that standing requires an injury to the plaintiff—not to someone else. Meyers, 548 S.W.3d at 485.

Regardless, even if the Court were to apply the federal third-party standing doctrine here, Dr. Karsan would still lack standing to bring claims on behalf of her patients. They do not have a close relationship with their hypothetical future patients, and women in Texas are capable of bringing lawsuits themselves to challenge the abortion statutes— as the Patient Plaintiffs have done here.

Dr. Karsan does not have the requisite “close relationship” with their hypothetical future patients—a point on which The United States Supreme Court’s decision in Kowalski is instructive. There, the Court held that attorneys lacked third-party standing to bring constitutional claims on behalf of criminal defendants who would be their future clients. 543 U.S. at 131. The Court contrasted an “existing attorney-client relationship,” which could support third-party standing under federal law, with a “hypothetical attorney-client relationship,” which could not. Id. The Court ultimately concluded that the attorneys “d[id] not have a ‘close relationship’ with their alleged ‘clients’; indeed, they ha[d] no relationship at all.” Id.

There is no appreciable difference between the hypothetical attorney-client relationship that was insufficient in Kowalski and the hypothetical provider-patient relationship in this litigation. Here, Dr. Karsan seeks temporary and permanent relief by bringing suit on behalf of hypothetical future patients who would be affected by Texas’s law. Kowalski rejects this nonexistent relationship as grounds to permit third-party standing.

Dr. Karsan has also not shown a “hindrance” to women bringing their own lawsuit challenging the medical exception. As a factual matter, women can and do bring suits to challenge abortion regulations. See, e.g., Leavitt v. Jane L., 518 U.S. 137 (1996) (per curiam); Hodgson v. Minnesota, 497 U.S. 417 (1990); Matheson, 450 U.S. 398; Harris v. McRae, 448 U.S. 297 (1980); Bellotti v. Baird, 428 U.S. 132 (1976); Poelker v. Doe, 432 U.S. 519 (1977) (per curiam); Maher v. Roe, 432 U.S. 464 (1977); Roe v. Wade, 410 U.S. 113 (1973).

This Court should, for all the foregoing reasons, find that Plaintiffs lack standing because their alleged injuries will not be redressed by a favorable ruling.

II. Plaintiffs’ claims are not ripe.

Like standing, ripeness emphasizes the need for a concrete injury to have a justiciable claim. Waco Indep. Sch. Dist. v. Gibson, 22 S.W.3d 849, 851 (Tex. 2000). The ripeness inquiry focuses on when the action may be brought, rather than on who may bring it, and seeks to conserve judicial time and resources for real and current controversies rather than hypothetical or remote disputes. Id. The plaintiff must show that “at the time a lawsuit is filed, the facts are sufficiently developed ‘so that injury has occurred or is likely to occur, rather than being contingent or remote.’” Patel v. Texas Dep’t of Licensing & Regul., 469 S.W.3d 69, 75-76 (Tex. 2015) (quoting Gibson, 22 S.W.3d at 851-52). When a plaintiff’s injury depends on contingent or hypothetical facts, or upon events that not yet come to pass, a case is not ripe. Gibson, 22 S.W.3d at 851. Ripeness is based in part on “the constitutional prohibition against advisory opinions, which in turn stems from separation-of-powers principles.” Tex. Bd. of Chiropractic Examiners v. Tex. Med. Ass’n, 270 S.W.3d 777, 781 (Tex. App.—Austin 2008, no pet.).

Plaintiffs’ claims of injury rest on speculation and conjecture. The alleged threatened injuries are hypothetical and contingent on future events; therefore, their claims are not yet ripe. “The essence of the ripeness doctrine is to avoid premature adjudication ... [and] to hold otherwise would be the essence of an advisory opinion, advising what the law would be on a hypothetical set of facts.” Robinson v. Parker, 353 S.W.3d 753, 756 (Tex. 2011) (cleaned up). Plaintiffs adduce no evidence—and plead no facts—demonstrating that they are likely to suffer from an enforcement action. Their fear or apprehension of future and speculative enforcement is insufficient to support their claim for injunctive relief. See, e.g., Frey v. DeCordova Bend Estate Owners Ass’n, 647 S.W.2d 246, 248 (Tex. 1983); Bruington v. Chesmar Homes, LLC, 2023 WL 6972987, at *11 (Tex. App.—El Paso, Oct. 20, 2023).

Here, Ms. Cox contends that she might experience complications while giving birth that are so severe she qualifies for the medical exception. This contingency, which may or may not happen, mean that the claims are not yet ripe for review.

Plaintiffs' threat of future injury depends on whether the Attorney General will eventually enforce Texas's abortion laws to prohibit the abortion Plaintiffs seek. Plaintiffs' rest their claim of injury against the Attorney General on a press statement made 16 months ago concerning a lawsuit brought by the Attorney General against the United States Secretary of Health and Human Services Xavier Becerra, Pls.' Pet. at 31, and on a press statement made after the Dobbs opinion was issued in eighteen months ago, Pls.' Pet. at 10. Plaintiffs fail to plead facts establishing a link between these statements and threatened enforcement against any of their contemplated actions. See generally Pls.' Pet.

While the Attorney General is authorized to assist local prosecutors in the prosecution of a criminal case at the request of the district or county attorney, several prerequisites would need to occur before that authority could threaten harm to Plaintiffs: (1) Plaintiffs would have to undertake proscribed activity, (2) the local prosecutor would have to decide to prosecute, (3) the local prosecutor would need to request assistance from the Attorney General, and finally (4) the Attorney General must agree to assist. "[F]ear or apprehension of the possibility of injury alone is not a basis for injunctive relief." Frey, 647 S.W.2d at 248.

Plaintiffs' claims against the Texas Medical Board and the Executive Director are even more specious. For their threat of injury, Plaintiffs rely on letters sent by Senator Bryan Hughes and the Texas Medical Association to the Texas Medical Board requesting the agency to issue "guidance" on the state of the law. Pls.' Pet. at 29. These letters were sent sixteen and seventeen months ago, respectively, and Plaintiffs claim the agency's alleged failure to respond demonstrate an imminent threat of enforcement. Inaction for seventeen months hardly suffices to support a finding of an imminent threat of enforcement this week. And Plaintiffs fail to allege any facts at all demonstrating that the Executive Director has ever considered taking enforcement actions against Plaintiff Karson's license. See generally Pls.' Pet. This elementary pleading failure requires dismissal.

III. Plaintiffs' Claims are Barred by Sovereign Immunity.

Sovereign immunity deprives a court of subject-matter jurisdiction in suits against the State. Miranda, 133 S.W.3d at 224. A suit against a state official lawfully exercising his governmental functions is considered a suit against the State. Dir. of Dep't of Ag. & Env't v. Printing Indus. Ass'n of Tex., 600 S.W.2d 264, 265–66, 270 (Tex. 1980). Public officials sued in their official capacities are protected by the same sovereign or governmental immunity as the governmental unit they represent. See Tex. A&M Univ. Sys. v. Koseoglu, 233 S.W.3d 835, 843–44 (Tex. 2007) (holding that “an official sued in his official capacity would assert sovereign immunity[,]” and that “[w]hen a state official files a plea to the jurisdiction, the official is invoking sovereign immunity from suit held by the government itself”).

For a plaintiff to overcome a defendant's assertion of sovereign immunity, “the plaintiff must affirmatively demonstrate the court's jurisdiction by alleging a valid waiver of immunity.” Dall. Area Rapid Transit v. Whitley, 104 S.W.3d 540, 542 (Tex. 2003). Plaintiffs have not sufficiently pled facts to show an exception to sovereign immunity applies. Therefore, all of Plaintiffs' claims are barred by sovereign immunity.

A. Ultra Vires

An exception to sovereign immunity is the ultra vires doctrine. To fall within the ultra vires exception, a suit must not complain of a government officer's exercise of discretion, but rather must allege, and ultimately prove, that the officer acted without legal authority or failed to perform a purely ministerial act. See Hall v. McRaven, 508 S.W.3d 232, 238 (Tex. 2017); see also City of El Paso v. Heinrich, 284 S.W.3d 366, 372 (Tex. 2009). Thus, ultra vires suits do not seek to alter government policy, but rather to enforce existing policy. Heinrich, 284 S.W.3d at 372. If a plaintiff has not actually alleged such an action, the claims remain jurisdictionally barred. Hall, 508 S.W.3d at 240–41 (holding the official capacity defendant acted within legal discretion and therefore was entitled to sovereign immunity).

Merely asserting legal conclusions or labeling a defendant's actions as “ultra vires,” “illegal,” or “unconstitutional” does not suffice to plead an ultra vires claim—what matters is whether the facts alleged constitute actions beyond the governmental actor's statutory authority, properly construed. Tex. Dep't of Transp. v. Sunset Transp., Inc., 357 S.W.3d 691, 702 (Tex. App.—Austin 2011, no pet.).

The Supreme Court of Texas recently clarified what it means for an official to act “without legal authority.” Hall, 508 S.W.3d at 238. The court stated, “a government officer with some discretion to interpret and apply a law may nonetheless act ‘without legal authority,’ and thus ultra vires, if he exceeds the bounds of his granted authority or if his acts conflict with the law itself.” Id. “Ministerial acts,” on the other hand, are those “where the law prescribes and defines the duties to be performed with such precision and certainty as to leave nothing to the exercise of discretion or judgment.” Id. (citing S.W. Bell Tel., L.P. v. Emmett, 459 S.W.3d 578, 587 (Tex. 2015) (quoting City of Lancaster v. Chambers, 883 S.W.2d 650, 654 (Tex. 1994))).

1. Plaintiffs cannot assert ultra vires claims against either the State or the Texas Medical Board.

Plaintiffs ultra vires claims against the State and the Texas Medical Board are barred as a matter of law. Pls. Pet. ¶¶ 170–73. “[U]ltra vires suits . . . cannot be brought against the state, which retains immunity, but must be brought against the state actors in their official capacity.” City of El Paso v. Heinrich, 284 S.W3d 366, 373 (Tex. 2009). Governmental entities remain immune from suit and are not proper parties in an ultra vires action. Id. at 372–73. Thus, Plaintiffs’ ultra vires claims against both the State of Texas and the Texas Medical Board are barred by sovereign immunity.

2. Plaintiffs fails to state ultra vires claims against the Attorney General and Executive Director.

Plaintiffs contend Defendants must enforce the medical exception as rewritten by this Court, and any effort the enforce the medical exception as written by the legislature is ultra vires. Pls.’ Pet. ¶ 170-73.

i. Plaintiffs cannot challenge the validity of the medical exception through an ultra vires action against the Attorney General and Executive Director.

Plaintiffs cannot challenge the constitutionality of the medical exception in a suit against the Attorney General and Executive Director in their official capacities. It is well-settled law in Texas that ultra vires claims against state officials in their official capacities are improper mechanisms to challenge the constitutionality of a statute. Patel, 469 S.W.3d at 76–77 (“[B]ecause the [plaintiffs] challenge the validity of the [] statutes and regulations . . . the ultra vires exception does not apply.”). To challenge the constitutionality of a statute, the challenger must sue the relevant state entity—not an official capacity defendant and not through an ultra vires claim. Id.; Tex. Dep’t of Transp. v. Sefzik, 355 S.W.3d 618, 621–22 & n.3 (Tex. 2011). Plaintiffs’ ultra vires claims necessarily require a finding that the medical exception as it currently exists is unconstitutional. This Court should, accordingly, dismiss the ultra vires claims against the Attorney General and Executive Director.

ii. Plaintiffs fail to allege the Attorney General and the Executive Director threaten to imminently violate the Texas Constitution.

An ultra vires claim will lie against an official when he: (1) exceeds the bounds of his granted authority or acts in conflict with the law itself; or (2) fails to perform a purely ministerial act, one that is defined by the law with such precision and certainty that it affords the official no discretion or room for judgment. Hall v. McRaven, 508 S.W.3d 232, 238 (Tex. 2017); Honors Acad., Inc. v. Texas Educ. Agency, 555 S.W.3d 54, 68 (Tex. 2018). But if the official's act was not on its face beyond his authority or in conflict with the law, the plaintiff has not stated a valid ultra vires claim that bypasses the official's governmental immunity. Matzen v. McLane, 659 S.W.3d 381, 388 (Tex. 2021).

Plaintiffs have not alleged that either the Attorney General or the Executive Director intend to enforce the medical exception in a manner inconsistent with the Texas Constitution. See generally Pls. Pet. The sole basis for their claims against the Attorney General is an advisory stating that he will “strictly enforce” the law. Id. at ¶ 39. Yet, nothing about this statement implies any action by the Attorney General that would exceed the scope of his authority under the Texas Constitution. Plaintiffs claims against the Executive Director, similarly, are based solely on his “capacity serv[ing] as the chief executive and administrative officer” of the Texas Medical Board. Pls.’ Pet. at ¶ 41. Plaintiffs do not allege that the Executive Director intends to enforce the law in a manner inconsistent with the Texas Constitution. Id. Plaintiffs attempt to plead around this problem by claiming that “any official” enforcing the medical exception, as written, would act ultra vires. Id. at ¶ 172. But this lawsuit isn’t against “any official.”

Plaintiffs fail to allege a valid ultra vires claim where they have not pled any factual allegations showing the Attorney General and the Executive Director enforced the medical exception in the past in a manner inconsistent with the Texas Constitution—nor that they threaten to imminently do so in the future.⁴

iii. Plaintiffs cannot use ultra vires claims to exert control over the State.

Ultra vires suits do not attempt to exert control over the state—they attempt to reassert the control of the state. Heinrich, 284 S.W.3d at 372. Stated another way, these suits do not seek to alter government policy but rather to enforce existing policy. Id.

Plaintiffs seek to alter State policy. They ask this Court to: (1) wholly rewrite the statutory language of the medical exception to exempt any circumstance where a physician determines that a “pregnant person has a physical emergent medical condition for which abortion would prevent or alleviate a risk of death or risk to their health (including their fertility);” and (2) rule that Defendants act ultra vires if they enforce the medical exception as written, instead of using the rewritten one they’ve asked this Court to adopt. Pls.’ Pet. ¶ 199. This is a bald attempt to seize control of state government. Plaintiffs ask this Court to exert control over the Legislature by rewriting the medical exception. Id. And then they ask this Court to exert control over the Executive by compelling Defendants to enforce the newly rewritten law. Id. This Court should find that Plaintiffs cannot state an ultra vires claim seeking to alter state policy, rather than enforce existing policy.

iv. Plaintiffs lack standing to challenge the constitutionality of S.B. 8.

The United States and Texas Supreme Courts have ruled that plaintiffs cannot challenge the constitutionality of S.B. 8 by suing the Attorney General and Executive Director because they lack the authority to enforce it. See Whole Woman’s Health v. Jackson, 142 S. Ct. 522, 539 (2021); Whole Woman’s Health v. Jackson, 642 S.W.3d 569 (Tex. 2022).⁵ To the extent Plaintiffs seek to challenge the constitutionality of S.B. 8 through ultra vires claims against the Attorney General and Executive Director—such claims are barred as a matter of law. Id. Finally, Plaintiffs lack standing against challenge the constitutionality of S.B. 8 against the State of Texas, because S.B. 8 is not enforced by the State. It is “enforced exclusively through the private civil actions” of private citizens. Tex. Health & Safety Code § 171.207(a).

B. Declaratory Judgment Act.

The Uniform Declaratory Judgment Act (“UDJA”) does not contain a general waiver sovereign immunity. See Acosta v. Univ. of Tex. at El Paso, No. 3:06-cv-408, 2007 WL 9701442, at *2 (W.D. Tex. 2007) (“A litigant cannot circumvent [sovereign immunity] by pleading a claim under the Declaratory Judgment Act.”); Beacon Nat’l Ins. Co. v. Montemayor, 86 S.W.3d 260, 266 (Tex. App.—Austin 2002, no pet.) (“[T]he UDJA does not establish subject-matter jurisdiction.”). It is “merely a procedural device for deciding cases already within a court’s jurisdiction.” Abbott v. Mex. Am. Legislative Caucus, Tex. House of Representatives, 647 S.W.3d 681,

⁵ For the same reason, any injury alleged caused by S.B. 8 cannot be traced to any Defendant, leaving Plaintiffs’ without standing to challenge S.B. 8.

708 (Tex. 2022). The UDJA provides only a limited waiver of sovereign and governmental immunity for challenges to the validity of a statute or ordinance. See Town of Shady Shores v. Swanson, 590 S.W.3d 544, 552 (Tex. 2019). “UDJA claims requesting other types of declaratory relief are barred absent a legislative waiver of immunity with respect to the underlying action.” Id. at 553; see Heinrich, 284 S.W.3d at 370.

1. Plaintiffs UDJA claims are barred by sovereign immunity.

The Legislature explicitly provided that the UDJA does not waive sovereign immunity for challenges to the validity of Texas’ abortion laws. Tex. Health & Safety Code § 171.211 (“This section prevails over any conflicting law, including: (1) the Uniform Declaratory Judgments Act.... This state has sovereign immunity, a political subdivision has governmental immunity, and each officer and employee of this state or a political subdivision has official immunity in any action, claim, or counterclaim or any type of legal or equitable action that challenges the validity of any provision or application of this chapter, on constitutional grounds or otherwise.”). Plaintiffs fail to identify any other vehicle through which they purport to bring their claims against Defendants. The Court need go no further in its analysis of Plaintiffs’ claims. Id. The Legislature did not waive sovereign immunity for challenges to the validity of Texas’ abortion laws; consequently, this Court lacks subject matter jurisdiction to consider them.⁶ Id.

⁶ Similarly, to the extent Plaintiffs ask the Court to “clarify” the scope of the medical exception—not strike it down as invalid—they cannot state a UDJA claim. PLS.’ AM. PET. PRAYER (“To enter a judgment against Defendants granting appropriate declaratory relief to clarify the scope of the exception to Texas’s abortion bans consistent with the Texas Constitution.” (emphasis added)); PLS.’ TEMP. INJ. APPL. at 9 (“Plaintiffs seek a declaration clarifying the scope of the medical exception to Texas’s abortion bans....”). The UDJA does not waive sovereign immunity for “bare statutory construction” claims. McLane Co., Inc. v. Texas Alcoholic Beverage Comm’n, 514 S.W.3d 871, 875 (Tex. App. 2017). This is one of the reliefs sought by Plaintiffs. PLS.’ TEMP. INJ. APPL. at 13 (“if the Court disagrees with all or part of Plaintiffs’ construction of the statute....” (emphasis added)). Plaintiffs UDJA claims are barred to the extent they assert bare statutory construction claims asking the Court to declare their rights under the scope of the medical exception.

2. Plaintiffs failed to join all interested parties.

Plaintiffs cannot bring a UDJA claim challenging the validity of S.B. 8 because they've failed to join every citizen of Texas. "The UDJA requires all with an interest who would be affected by a declaration be made parties to any declaratory judgment action." Montemayor, 86 S.W.3d at 268; Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 37.006(a) ("When declaratory relief is sought, all persons who have or claim any interest that would be affected by the declaration must be made parties."). Senate Bill 8 expressly states that the statute "shall be enforced exclusively through the private civil actions" of private citizens. Tex. Health & Safety Code § 171.207(a). Here, Plaintiffs purport to sue every citizen of Texas in their individual capacities by suing that State and claiming that "the State" "includes private citizens that could potentially enforce S.B. 8." Pls. Pet. ¶ 8. Plaintiff has not and cannot cite to any legal authority allowing them to bring individual capacity claims against every citizen of Texas through a suit against the State.

3. Plaintiffs cannot bring UDJA claims against the Attorney General and the Executive Director.

The UDJA provides a narrow waiver of sovereign immunity for declaratory judgment actions that challenge the constitutionality of a statute, which only applies to "the relevant governmental entities," not state officials. Tex. Dep't of Transp. v. Sefzik, 355 S.W.3d 618, 621–22 & n.3 (Tex. 2011); Tex. Educ. Agency v. Leeper, 893 S.W.2d 432, 446 (Tex. 1994); Gant v. Abbott, 574 S.W.3d 625, 633–34 (Tex. App.—Austin 2019, no pet.). So, to the extent Plaintiffs assert UDJA claims against the Attorney General and Executive Director, their claims are barred as a matter of law by sovereign immunity.

4. Alternatively, Plaintiffs fail to state viable UDJA claims against the State and TMB.

To the extent that Plaintiffs seek declaratory relief from the State or TMB, their claims must meet the requirements laid out in the UDJA. Plaintiffs' claims do not. First, any declaratory relief only applies to "challenges to the validity of an ordinance or statute." Town of Shady Shores v. Swanson, 590 S.W.3d 544, 552 (Tex. 2019). To overcome sovereign immunity in such a suit, Plaintiffs must establish a viable constitutional claim. See Abbott, 647 S.W.3d at 699; Tex. Tech Univ. Health. Sci. Ctr. v. Enob, 545 S.W.3d 607, 624 (Tex. App—El Paso 2016, no pet.) Additionally, "[t]he UDJA requires all with an interest who would be affected by a declaration be made parties to any declaratory judgment action." Montemayor, 86 S.W.3d at 268. Here, as discussed infra, Plaintiffs have not asserted viable constitutional claims, nor made party to this suit all who would be affected. Thus, their request for declaratory relief is barred by sovereign immunity.

C. Constitutional Claims

Sovereign immunity is only waived for constitutional claims that are viable. See General Servs. Comm'n v. Little-Tex Insulation Co., 39 S.W.3d 591, 598 (Tex. 2001); Klumb v. Houston Mun. Emps. Pension Sys., 458 S.W.3d 1, 13 (Tex. 2015); see also Abbott, 647 S.W.3d at 686; Combs v. Webster, 311 S.W.3d 85 (Tex. App. – Austin 2009, pet. denied); Combs v. B.A.R.D. Industries, Inc., 299 S.W.3d 463 (Tex. App. – Austin 2009, no pet.).

Here, none of Plaintiffs' constitutional claims are viable because the medical exception passes rational basis review.

1. Plaintiffs fail to state a viable due course of law claim.

To overcome sovereign immunity, a plaintiff must establish a viable due course of law claim. Tex. Tech Univ. Health., 545 S.W.3d at 624. "The Texas due course clause is nearly identical to the federal due process clause," and, though textually different, Texas courts analyze these clauses without substantive distinction. Univ. of Tex. Med. Sch. v. Than, 901 S.W.2d 926, 929 (Tex. 1995); Tex. Const. art. I, § 19. “A claimant prevails on a substantive due process claim by establishing it holds a constitutionally protected property right to which the Fourteenth Amendment’s due process protection applies and by establishing that the challenged governmental action is not rationally related to furthering a legitimate state interest.” Edwards Aquifer Auth. v. Day, 274 S.W.3d 742, 757 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2008), aff’d, 369 S.W.3d 814 (Tex. 2012).⁷ Furthermore, “the government may not infringe certain ‘fundamental’ liberty interests at all, no matter what process is provided, unless the infringement is narrowly tailored to serve a compelling state interest.” Zaatari v. City of Austin, 615 S.W.3d 172, 192 (Tex. App.—Austin 2019, pet. denied) (citing Reno v. Flores, 507 U.S. 292, 301–02 (1993)).

i. Patients fail to state a viable due course of law claim because the medical exception passes rational basis review.

Patients’ claims are subject to rational basis review. They contend that the medical exception violates the fundamental rights of “pregnant people.” Pls.’ Pet. ¶¶ 174–81. The Supreme Court, however, has held that the “provision of abortion,” “is not a fundamental constitutional right.” Dobbs v. Jackson Women’s Health Org., 142 S. Ct. 2228, 2283 (2022) (emphasis added). Because Texas courts analyze due course of law claims like the federal due process clause, “a law that does not affect fundamental rights or interests . . . is valid if it merely bears a rational relationship to a legitimate state interest.” Tex. Workers’ Comp. Comm’n v. Garcia, 893 S.W.2d 504, 525 (Tex. 1995) (citing Williamson v. Lee Optical Co., 348 U.S. 483, 491 (1995)).

⁷ Several Justices on the Texas Supreme Court have recently questioned the scope of the rights protected by the due-course clause. Tex. Dep’t of State Health Servs. v. Crown Distrib. LLC, 647 S.W.3d 648, 664 (Tex. 2022) (Young, J., concurring). But as was the case in Crown Distributing, there is no formulation of the due-course clause that would support Plaintiffs’ claims.

Thus, Patients claims are unquestionably subject to rational basis review.

It is not the Courts' duty to second guess legislative factfinding, "improve" on, or "cleanse" the legislative process by relitigating the facts that led to the passage of a law. Heller v. Doe, 509 U.S. 312, 320 (1993) (providing that a state "has no obligation to produce evidence to sustain the rationality of a statutory classification"). Under rational basis review, courts must presume that the law in question is valid and sustain it so long as the law is rationally related to a legitimate state interest. City of Cleburne v. Cleburne Living Ctr., 473 U.S. 432, 440, 105 (1985). As the Supreme Court has often stressed, the rational basis test seeks only to determine whether any conceivable rationale exists for an enactment. F.C.C. v. Beach Commc'ns, Inc., 508 U.S. 307, 313 (1993) (citing cases); see also Planned Parenthood of Greater Texas Surgical Health Servs. v. Abbott, 748 F.3d 583, 594 (5th Cir. 2014).

A law "based on rational speculation unsupported by evidence or empirical data" satisfies rational basis review. Beach Commc'ns, 508 U.S. at 315. There is "never a role for evidentiary proceedings" under rational basis review. Abbott, 748 F.3d at 596 (quoting Nat'l Paint & Coatings Ass'n. v. City of Chicago, 45 F.3d 1124, 1127 (7th Cir.1995)). The fact that reasonable minds can disagree on legislation, moreover, suffices to prove that the law has a rational basis. Id.

The medical exception passes rational basis review because it is rationally related to a legitimate government interest. Texas has a legitimate interest "in respect for and preservation of prenatal life at all stages of development; the protection of maternal health and safety; the elimination of particularly gruesome or barbaric medical procedures; the preservation of the integrity of the medical profession; the mitigation of fetal pain; and the prevention of discrimination on the basis of race, sex, or disability." Dobbs, 142 S. Ct. at 2284; see also Tex. Health & Safety Code § 171.202(3) (“Texas has compelling interests from the outset of a woman’s pregnancy in protecting the health of the woman and the life of the unborn child . . .”). The medical exception is rationally related to these interests by permitting abortions in instances where continuing the pregnancy poses a risk to the life of the pregnant woman.

Patients cannot credibly claim otherwise. To the extent they cite to Rehnquist’s dissent in Roe, 410 U.S. at 173, the quoted language states the prohibiting abortions where the mother’s life is in jeopardy would likely lack a rational relation to a valid state objective. Pls.’ Pet. ¶ 150. But Texas’s medical exception does exactly the opposite, it does not prohibit abortions when the mother’s life is in jeopardy.

This Court should find that Patients fail to state viable due course of law claims because the medical exception passes rational basis review.

ii. Dr. Karsan fails to state a viable due course of law claim because she does not have a vested property interest in performing abortions.

Liberty or property interests protected under the Due Process Clause “attain this constitutional status by virtue of the fact that they have been initially recognized and protected by state law....” Paul v. Davis, 424 U.S. 693, 710–11 (1976). “The due-course clause is not so broad as to protect every form and method in which one may choose to work or earn a living, and some work-related interests do not enjoy constitutional protection at all.” Tex. Dep’t of State Health Servs. v. Crown Distrib., LLC, 647 S.W.3d 648, 654 (Tex. 2022) (emphasis in original). In order for a “work-related interest” to be constitutionally protected, the interest must be “vested” and, thus, not subject to “the legislature’s right to change the law and abolish the interest.” Id. at 655 (internal quotations omitted). A professional license is a property right, but it is one that has been created by statute and is subject to the state’s power to impose conditions upon the granting or revocation of the license for the protection of society. Scally v. Texas State Bd. of Med. Examiners, 351 S.W.3d 434, 446 (Tex. App. 2011). “Maintaining a medical license is not a fundamental right, and physicians are not a suspect class.” Id. at 448.

Dr. Karsan cannot state a viable due course of law claim because she does not have a vested interest in performing abortions whenever they see fit. The “medical profession is extensively regulated and has licensure requirements.” Zadeh v. Robinson, 928 F.3d 457, 465 (5th Cir. 2019). When an interest “is predicated upon the anticipated continuance” of an existing law and is “subordinate to” the legislature’s right to change the law and “abolish” the interest, the interest is not vested. Crown Distrib., 647 S.W.3d at 654. It is beyond dispute that the performance of abortions is a work-related interest that is subordinate to the Legislature’s right to limit, or even abolish. See Dobbs, 142 S. Ct. at 2239. Thus, it is not a constitutionally protected interest subject to the due process of law clause.

Even assuming, arguendo, that Dr. Karsan did have a vested work-related property interest in performing abortions whenever they see fit, they still fail to state a viable due course of law claim because the medical exception passes rational basis review and is not oppressive. A “party making an as-applied challenge to an economic regulation under the Due Course of Law provision must make a showing under either of the two Patel prongs: (1) the statute’s purpose could not arguably be rationally related to a legitimate governmental interest; or (2) when considered as a whole, the statute’s actual, real-world effect as applied to the challenging party could not arguably be rationally related to, or is so burdensome as to be oppressive in light of, the governmental interest.”⁸ Garrett v. Texas State Bd. of Pharmacy, No. 03-21-00039-CV, 2023 WL 376900, at *3–

4 (Tex. App. Jan. 25, 2023); Patel v. Texas Department of Licensing and Regulation, 469 S.W.3d 69, 90 (Tex. 2015).

Plaintiffs seemingly do not dispute that “Texas has compelling interests from the outset of a woman’s pregnancy in protecting the health of the woman and the life of the unborn child” Tex. Health & Safety Code § 171.202(3).

The medical exception is rationally related to this interest by permitting abortions in instances where continuing the pregnancy poses a substantial risk to the health of the woman. See Mauldin v. Texas State Bd. of Plumbing Examn’rs, 94 S.W.3d 867, 873 (Tex. App.—Austin 2002, no pet.) (explaining that “[a] legislative choice ... may be based on rational speculation unsupported by evidence or empirical data” (quoting Heller, 509 U.S. at 320–21)). Dr. Karsan contends that the medical exception is poorly worded such that she is confused about its scope. But the relevant test under the due course clause is whether the governmental action is “rational,” not whether an alternative wording would be “superior” or even “perfect.” Garrett, 2023 WL 376900, at *5-6 (“At most, Doctors have demonstrated that states have undertaken different approaches to regulating the dispensing of prescription medication, and that there may be benefits and detriments associated with either physicians or pharmacists having final authority over dispensing medication. But picking between such alternatives is a policy decision of the Legislature.”). Dr. Karsan has not and cannot state a viable due course clause claim based on the contention that the medical exception could have been better worded. Id. Accordingly, this Court should find that Dr. Karsan has failed to satisfy the high burden of demonstrating that the medical exception is not rationally related to the legitimate governmental interest in protecting the health of the woman and the life of the unborn child.

Dr. Karsan also fail the second Patel factor because she cannot show that the medical exceptions actual, real-world effect, as applied to her, could not be rationally related to a government interest or is so burdensome as to be oppressive. In Patel, eyebrow threaders had to undertake 320 hours of irrelevant training as part of an esthetician license to legally practice eyebrow threading in Texas. 469 S.W.3d at 89; see also Live Oak Brewing, 537 S.W.3d at 656 (explaining that eyebrow threaders in Patel were “entirely shut out from practicing their trade” until they completed training, including paying for training and losing the opportunity to make money while actively practicing their trade). Conversely, in Garrett, a group of physicians were required to attend pharmacy school, complete a 1,000-hour internship, and pass two exams before being allowed to dispense medication at cost. Garrett, 2023 WL 376900, at *6. The Third Court of Appeals found that regulation on the scope of the physicians’ practice in Garrett did not serve as a barrier to entry into the medical profession, therefore it did not deprive them of their occupational freedom under the second Patel factor. Id. The same is true for Abortionists like Dr. Karsan. Unlike Patel, the challenged medical exception does not serve as a barrier to entry into the medical profession, instead, like the regulation in Garrett, it merely serves as a limit on the scope of their practice. Id. This Court should, accordingly, find that Dr. Karsan has not and cannot show that the medical exception is “so burdensome as to be oppressive.”

2. Plaintiffs fail to state a viable equal protection claim.

Plaintiffs sex-based equal protection claims similarly fall flat. Pls.’ Pet. ¶¶ 193–200. The United States Supreme Court held in Dobbs that abortion regulations are not sex-based classifications subject to heightened scrutiny under the equal protection clause. Dobbs v. Jackson Women’s Health Org., 142 S. Ct. 2228, 2245 (2022). It went on to hold that sex-based equal protection claims, like those made by Plaintiffs, are “squarely foreclosed by our precedents, which establish that a state's regulation of abortion is not a sex-based classification and is thus not subject to the heightened scrutiny that applies to such classifications." Id. (emphasis added). The regulation of a medical procedure that only one sex can undergo does not trigger heightened constitutional scrutiny unless the regulation is a "mere pretext[t] designed to effect an invidious discrimination against members of one sex or the other." Id. at 2245-46 (citing Geduldig v. Aiello, 417 U.S. 484, 496, n. 20 (1974)). "Accordingly, laws regulating or prohibiting abortion are not subject to heightened scrutiny. Rather, they are governed by the same standard of review as other health and safety measures." Id. at 2246.

The Texas Supreme Court has held that "[i]n this world there are certain immutable facts of life which no amount of legislation may change. As a consequence there are certain laws which necessarily will only affect one sex." Bell v. Low Income Women of Tex., 95 S.W.3d 253, 260 (Tex. 2002). "The biological truism that abortions can only be performed on women does not necessarily mean that governmental action restricting abortion funding discriminates on the basis of gender." Id. at 263.

Plaintiffs do not allege that the medical exception is pretext designed to effect invidious discrimination against members of one sex or another. See generally Pls' Pet. As a matter of fact, the word "pretext" does not appear anywhere in Plaintiffs' pleadings. Id. "Abortion is inherently different from other medical procedures, because no other procedure involves the purposeful termination of a potential life." Harris v. McRae, 448 U.S. 297, 325 (1980). The "goal of preventing abortion" does not constitute "invidiously discriminatory animus" against women. Dobbs, 142 S. Ct. at 2246 (citing Bray v. Alexandria Women's Health Clinic, 506 U.S. 263, 273-274 (1993)).

(internal quotation marks omitted). So, rational basis review applies to Plaintiffs equal protection claims.

The medical exception, as discussed supra, passes rational basis review because permitting abortions in instances where continuing the pregnancy poses a risk to the health of the woman is rationally related to the State's legitimate interests "in respect for and preservation of prenatal life at all stages of development; the protection of maternal health and safety; the elimination of particularly gruesome or barbaric medical procedures; the preservation of the integrity of the medical profession; the mitigation of fetal pain; and the prevention of discrimination on the basis of race, sex, or disability." Dobbs, 142 S. Ct. at 2284; see also Tex. Health & Safety Code § 171.202(3).⁹

Plaintiffs have not and cannot assert a sex-based discrimination claim, rational basis applies and, for the reasons above, they fail to plead a viable equal protection claim. Thus, sovereign immunity bars these claims.

CONCLUSION

For these reasons, Defendants respectfully request this Court to grant their Plea to the Jurisdiction and dismiss Plaintiffs' claims, including their Application for a Temporary Restraining Order, in their entirety.

⁹ It is difficult to see how Plaintiffs' equal protection challenge would benefit them. If the medical exception violates equal protection remedy would be to strike down completely. See Downs v. State, 244 S.W.3d 511, 519 n.3 (Tex. App. 2007).

DECLARATION OF INGRID SKOP, M.D.

I, Ingrid Skop, M.D., hereby declare as follows:

1. I am over the age of eighteen and am competent to offer testimony. I submit this expert declaration based on my personal knowledge and experience.
2. I have been a board-certified obstetrician and gynecologist (OB-GYN) since 1998. I received my undergraduate degree from Oklahoma State University and my medical degree from Washington University School of Medicine. I completed my residency in obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio.
3. I practiced obstetrics and gynecology at a private practice in San Antonio from 1996 to 2022. I continue to practice as an obstetric hospitalist today.
4. I've attached a copy of my C.V. detailing my experience, training, and knowledge.
5. I am familiar with Texas' abortion laws and previously provided expert testimony on the medical exception in Zurawski v. St. of Tex., Cause No. D-1-GN-23-000968 (Travis Ct'y Dist. Ct. 353rd Jud. Dist., March 6, 2023).

6. A medical exception exists to Texas' general prohibition on abortion when a physician, in their reasonable medical judgment, concludes that a pregnant female "has a life-threatening physical condition aggravated by, caused by, or arising from a pregnancy that places the female at risk of death or poses a serious risk of substantial impairment of a major bodily function unless the abortion is performed or induced." Tex. Health & Safety Code § 170A.002(b)(2).

7. I have reviewed the pleadings in this matter.

8. Ms. Cox alleges that her child has been diagnosed with trisomy-18.

9. Ms. Cox alleges that she has intermittently experienced the following symptoms during her pregnancy: elevated glucose levels, cramping, diarrhea, and leakage from an unknown source.

10. Ms. Cox also alleges that she is at increased risk of complications during birth due to her two prior C-section births.

11. In my expert opinion, as pled, Ms. Cox has not alleged that she has been diagnosed with a life-threatening physical condition aggravated by, caused by, or arising from her pregnancy as required to qualify for the medical exception.

12. Further, in my expert opinion, as pled, Ms. Cox has not alleged that she has been diagnosed with a condition that places her at risk of death or poses a serious risk of substantial impairment of a major bodily function unless the abortion is performed or induced as required to qualify for the medical exception.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

Executed in Bexar County, TX, on December 6, 2023.

THE REPORTER: Today's date is Thursday, July 6, 2023. The time is 9:38 a.m. Central Standard Time. This is the videotaped oral deposition of Damla Karsan M.D.; and it is being conducted remotely. The witness is located in Houston, Texas.

My name a Debbie Cunningham, CSR Number 2065. I am administering the oath and reporting the deposition remotely by stenographic means from Austin, Texas.

Would Counsel please state their appearances and locations for the record, beginning with Plaintiffs' counsel?

MR. KABAT: Nicolas Kabat in New York, New York for the Plaintiffs.

THE REPORTER: Mr. Stone, we can't hear you.

MR. STONE: Can you hear me now?

THE REPORTER: Yes.

MR. STONE: Okay. Jonathan Stone on behalf of Defendants. I'm joined by my cocounsel, Amy Pletscher; and I am located in Austin, Texas.

MR. KABAT: And, for the record, joining me today is Molly Duane, in New York, New York, as well.

1 DAMLA KARSAN, M.D.,

2 having been duly sworn, testified as follows:

3 EXAMINATION

4 BY MR. STONE:

5 Q. Good morning, Dr. Karsan.

6 Before we begin, let me just kind of go
7 over some of the rules of depositions for you. Do you
8 understand that during the course of the deposition
9 you'll need to answer verbally so that the court
10 reporter can record your answer?

11 A. I do.

12 Q. And during the course of the deposition, do
13 you understand that if you need to take a bathroom break
14 or any other kind of break, you can simply ask?

15 A. I do.

16 Q. And do you understand that before you take
17 that break, if there's a pending question, you'll need
18 to answer the question before we take the break?

19 A. I do.

20 Q. And do you understand that if during the 21 course of the deposition if any of my questions are 22 vague or I speak too fast or you have any kind of 23 difficulty understanding me, you can stop and ask me to 24 clarify?

25 A. I do.

1 Q. And, lastly, do you understand that during the
2 course of the deposition, you'll hear objections made;
3 but you'll still have to answer the question until 4 specifically instructed not to by your attorney?

5 A. I do.

6 Q. Have you ever been deposed before?

7 A. Once.

8 Q. How long ago was that?

9 A. Probably about ten years or more.

10 Q. Have you ever testified in a case before?

11 A. I have not.

12 Q. You are bringing this case on behalf of 13 yourself and your patients, right?

14 A. Correct.

15 Q. What harm has the medical exception to Texas'
16 abortion laws specifically caused you?

17 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

18 A. It has made it more difficult for me to do my
19 job.

20 Q. (BY MR. STONE) Let's start with your job.
21 What is your job?

22 A. I am an OB/GYN. I practice general obstetrics
23 and gynecology.

24 Q. How has Texas' medical exception to its 25 abortion laws made it more difficult for you to do your

2 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

3 MR. STONE: State your objection.

4 MR. KABAT: The foundation. You haven't
5 explained which exception you're referring to at this 6 point.

7 A. So I go ahead.

8 So it has made it more difficult for me
9 to provide appropriate care to pregnant patients with 10 complications of pregnancy that may require an abortion
11 to protect the health of the mother.

12 Q (BY MR. STONE) How has it made it more
13 difficult?

14 A. There are lots of questions and anxiety about 15 what can legally be performed in the state of Texas, a 16 lot of fear about risk of losing my license, being 17 imprisoned, facing tremendous fines; and it has also 18 delayed care because it has required me to scramble to 19 try to figure out how those patients can get the care
20 they need elsewhere.

21 Q. So if I understand you correctly, it's made 22 it -- the medical exception to Texas' abortion law has 23 harmed you because it has caused you to have lots of 24 questions, anxiety, fear of being imprisoned, fines --
25 or being fined, and has caused a delay in care as you

1 are required to scramble for how to get care for
2 patients elsewhere. Is that accurate?

3 A. That's fair.

4 Q. Is there any other harms that have been
5 specifically caused to you by the medical exception to
6 Texas' abortion laws?

7 A. Yes. It has required me to spend large
8 amounts of time, uncompensated time, in trying to assist
9 these patients in what was previously a more simple
10 decision.

11 Q. What do you mean, it was previously a more
12 simple decision?

13 A. Prior to S.B. 8 and the Dobbs decision, I was 14 able to plan for the care of my patients without fear of 15 litigation and other previously stated concerns; and I 16 could proceed without having to second-guess or having 17 to find alternate pathways.

18 Q. Prior to the Dobbs decision and the passage of 19 S.B. 8, did you perform abortions in Texas?

20 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

21 A. Yes.

22 Q (BY MR. STONE) Did you perform -- prior to 23 the passage of -- or prior to the Dobbs decision and the 24 passage of S.B. 8, did you perform elective abortions in 25 Texas?

1 A. Yes.

2 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

3 Q. (BY MR. STONE) Prior to the Dobbs decision
4 and S.B. 8, did you perform abortions in Texas pursuant
5 to the medical exceptions to Texas' abortion laws?

6 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

7 A. Yes -- I'm sorry. Let me ask for
8 clarification. You said "prior to" or "after"?

9 Q. (BY MR. STONE) Prior.

10 A. Yes.

11 Q. So you have experience before the passage
12 of S.B. 8 in applying the medical exception to Texas'
13 abortion laws in your practice?

14 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

15 (Simultaneous speakers.)

16 MR. KABAT: Restating my objection to 17 form.

18 Q. (BY MR. STONE) I'm sorry. Did you answer?

19 A. I said yes.

20 Q. Okay. Yes.

21 As you understand it, what was the 22 medical exception to Texas' abortion laws prior to the 23 passage of S.B. 8 and the Dobbs decision?

24 A. I believe abortion was legal up to 20 weeks
25 from conception; and I did not perform abortions beyond

1 that gestation, so I did not have concerns about the
2 exact exceptions beyond that. I mean, I -- because
3 abortion was legal up to 20 weeks from conception, I did
4 not have to concern myself with whether I was crossing a
5 line with a medical exception or not.

6 I did terminate pregnancies by delivery
7 beyond that gestation, but not with the intent of 8 terminating the life of the fetus. I can give you an 9 example if that would help.

10 Q. Well, I'm just asking about -- let's -- I'm -- 11 let's focus on the definition as you understood it,
12 though.

13 So you testified that prior to the S.B. 8
14 and Dobbs, you performed abortions pursuant to the 15 medical exception that existed at that time to Texas'
16 abortion laws, right?

17 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

18 A. I'm not sure that I know what the medical 19 exceptions were, and I didn't concern myself with that 20 because my understanding is that abortions were legal up
21 to 20 weeks from conception. And I always filled out
22 the appropriate paperwork and submitted it to the State.
23 I was never advised by any of the authorities at any of 24 the facilities where I worked that I needed to qualify
25 for any exception. So I cannot tell you what those

1 exceptions were exactly.

2 Q (BY MR. STONE) Okay. Let me ask this a
3 little differently. Do you know what the medical 4 exception to Texas' abortion laws were prior to the
5 passage of S.B. 8 and the Dobbs decision?

6 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

7 Q. (BY MR. STONE) I'm sorry. I couldn't hear
8 your answer.

9 A. I do not.

10 Q. Okay. Do you believe that Texas' abortion --
11 the medical -- strike that.

12 In your opinion, did the medical
13 exception to Texas' abortion laws change after the Dobbs
14 decision?

15 A. It's hard for me to say since I don't know
16 what it is -- what it was. I know what the current 17 exceptions are.

18 Q. Do you have any reason to believe that the 19 current medical exception to Texas' abortion laws is any 20 different than it was prior to the S.B. 8 and the Dobbs
21 decision?

22 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

23 A. Again, I don't know since I don't have a point
24 of comparison.

25 Q (BY MR. STONE) So is it fair to say that the

1 medical exception to Texas' abortion laws, in your
2 opinion, did not harm you prior to the Dobbs decision?

3 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

4 A. I think that's fair to say.

5 Q (BY MR. STONE) At what point did the medical
6 exception to Texas' abortion laws first begin to harm
7 specifically you?

8 A. With the passage of S.B. 8.

9 Q. And what about the passage of S.B. 8 caused
10 the medical exception to Texas' abortion laws to first
11 begin causing harm specifically to you?

12 A. Because it became -- it came into play at that 13 point prior to 20 weeks from conception, where it had 14 not come into play in any cases or in almost any cases
15 that I had experience with.

16 Q. Have you performed any abortions in Texas
17 since the passage of S.B. 8?

18 A. I have not.

19 Q. Why not?

20 A. Because I was able to find alternate care for 21 my patients, most of whom have means.

22 Q. Are there any other reasons other than that 23 you were able the find alternate care for your patients,
24 most of whom have means, that you have not performed any 25 abortions since the passage of S.B. 8 in Texas?

1 A. Yes, I do not want to get crossways with the
2 law. I don't want to have to defend myself.

3 Q. If you are successful in this lawsuit, will
4 you resume performing abortions in the state of Texas?

5 A. If the situation necessitates it, I will feel 6 more comfortable taking care of my patients here in 7 Houston.

8 Q. Have any -- so is it fair to say that if 9 you're suc- -- the difference between now and if you're
10 successful in this lawsuit is that you'll feel more
11 comfortable performing abortions pursuant to the medical 12 exception to Texas' abortion laws if the situation
13 necessitates it?

14 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

15 A. I will feel more protected and less persecuted
16 in my efforts.

17 Q (BY MR. STONE) How will you feel more
18 protected?

19 A. I will feel like the risk of losing my license
20 and being imprisoned for life and having major financial 21 fines or hardships placed on me is less likely.

22 Q. How are you being persecuted?

23 A. I feel like the legislator [sic] has inserted
24 itself into my relationship with my patients when trying
25 to make decisions about their care.

1 Q. So is it fair to say that you believe the
2 Legislature is persecuting you?

3 A. That the State is with the Legislature as the 4 representative of the constituents.

5 Q. Are there any particular legislators that are 6 persecuting you?

7 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

8 A. No.

9 Q (BY MR. STONE) And you said that the State --
10 just the State is persecuting you as well; is that 11 correct?

12 A. Yes.

13 Q. Is there any particular person in the state
14 that is persecuting you?

15 A. I would say all of the elected representatives
16 who have made these -- who have passed these laws.

17 Q. And is that only the elected representatives
18 that voted for the laws, or do you include all the 19 legislators in the legislature?

20 A. I guess, technically, it's those that voted 21 for the law which caused it to pass.

22 Q. And can you name any of them?

23 A. No, I cannot.

24 Q. How has the medical exception to Texas'
25 abortion laws specifically harmed your patients?

1 A. It has restricted their access to medically
2 reasonable and, often, necessary care.

3 Q. How has it restricted their access to 4 necessary care?

5 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

6 A. It has created an environment of confusion and 7 fear where their ability to access an abortion has been
8 seriously restricted, almost completely negated.

9 Q. (BY MR. STONE) Well, if it's often necessary
10 care -- strike that.

11 Can you give me an example of a patient
12 that you've treated that required necessary care that 13 included an abortion who was unable -- who was unable to 14 do so because of the exception -- the medical exception
15 to Texas' abortion laws?

16 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

17 A. Sure. I have a patient who was pregnant with 18 her second child and at her first ultrasound beyond the 19 initial confirmation that she was pregnant and that 20 there was a heartbeat, the maternal-fetal medicine
21 physician reading the ultrasound images described an 22 anomaly called body-stalk anomaly, where many of the 23 organs were outside the fetal body and the fetus was 24 connected to the placenta by its liver.

25 This is, in my understanding, universally

1 fatal; and the patient had to travel 14 hours by car
2 with her partner and her toddler, all the while
3 suffering a kidney stone attack, which also was 4 dangerous, in order to get an abortion, 14 hours there
5 and 14 hours back, because the abortion could not be
6 performed here in Houston.

7 Q. Why couldn't the abortion be performed in
8 Houston?

9 A. Because the law -- the exceptions are very
10 vague and the patient's life was not in imminent danger
11 and I was advised by my maternal-fetal colleagues that 12 it did not meet the exception, in their opinion.

13 Q. Wait. So you didn't make a determination
14 whether or not this patient that we're talking about 15 here met the medical exception to Texas' abortion laws.
16 Is that accurate?

17 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

18 A. I was very confused. I was not sure that she 19 met the exception or did not meet the exception. It was 20 very unclear to me.

21 Q (BY MR. STONE) So is it fair to say that you
22 didn't make a determination as to whether or not the 23 patient met the medical exception?

24 A. Did or didn't? I'm sorry. I couldn't hear.

25 Q. Yeah, let me rephrase. Did you make a

1 determination, you, make a determination that the
2 patient did not -- that this patient did not qualify for
3 the medical exception?

4 A. Yes, but that was in consultation with my
5 high-risk obstetrical colleagues.

6 Q. You didn't consult with an attorney when
7 making that decision. Is that accurate?

8 A. I have been advised -- I did not in that 9 specific case.

10 Q. I don't want to know what you specifically
11 said back and forth with the attorney. I'm just asking
12 if you consulted or spoke with an attorney about it.

13 A. Not in that specific case.

14 Q. Okay. So is it fair to say that you relied on 15 the advice of your colleagues when determining that this 16 patient did not meet the medical exception to Texas'
17 abortion laws?

18 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

19 MR. STONE: State your objection.

20 MR. KABAT: I think you're 21 mischaracterizing her prior testimony.

22 A. I have been told that -- or I have been
23 required by the facility where I practice that I can
24 perform an abortion; but I must have a second physician, 25 preferably a high-risk obstetrician, write in the

1 patient's chart that they agree that the abortion is 2 necessary.

3 Q (BY MR. STONE) Ah, okay. What is the name
4 of the facility where you work that we're talking about
5 right now?

6 A. It's the Woman's Hospital of Texas.

7 Q. Woman's Hos- -- can I just refer to it as 8 Woman's Hospital?

9 A. Sure.

10 Q. Okay. Now, Woman's Hospital has a policy
11 explaining under what conditions a medical condition
12 would qualify for the medical exception to Texas'
13 abortion laws. Is that accurate?

14 A. Yes. I also have privileges at two other
15 facilities.

16 Q. What are those facilities?

17 A. The Pavil- -- Texas Children's Hospital and 18 the Methodist Hospital.

19 Q. Does Children's Hospital have a policy
20 explaining under what circumstances a medical condition
21 qualifies for the medical exception to Texas' abortion
22 laws?

23 A. Not that I'm aware of. We've been told we 24 cannot do abortions there.

25 Q. Does -- the same question, but for Methodist.

1 Does Methodist have a policy detailing under what
2 circumstances you can perform an abortion pursuant to
3 the medical exception in Texas?

4 A. I'm not sure; but, again, we've been told we
5 cannot perform abortions.

6 Q. And to be clear, Children's and Methodist
7 told -- let me start with Children's.

8 To be clear, if I'm understanding you
9 correctly, Children's told you that you cannot perform
10 an abortion under any circumstances. Is that accurate?

11 A. Not without counsel from the hospital
12 attorneys.

13 Q. Okay. So the policy at Children's is that 14 you -- in order to perform an abortion pursuant to the 15 medical exception to Texas' abortion laws, you have to 16 first consult with the hospital's attorneys. Is that 17 accurate?

18 A. (No audible response.)

19 Q. And is it the same policy at Methodist?

20 A. I believe so.

21 THE REPORTER: I'm sorry. I missed the 22 last answer before this.

23 THE WITNESS: "Yes."

24 THE REPORTER: Thank you.

25 THE WITNESS: Thank you.

1 Q (BY MR. STONE) Have you had a cir- -- any
2 circumstances at Children's Hospital where you had to
3 consult with the hospital's counsel on whether or not a
4 patient met the medical exception to Texas' abortion
5 laws?

6 A. No.

7 Q. What about at Methodist?

8 A. No.

9 THE REPORTER: Excuse me, Counsel. I'm
10 sorry. I'm hearing some background noise, and it's 11 causing me to have difficulty hearing the witness'
12 answers.

13 MR. STONE: Do you know who -- is 14 everybody muted? I'm not sure who it is. I hear it,
15 too.

16 And it's gone. That's good.

17 THE WITNESS: Okay.

18 Q. (BY MR. STONE) Okay. So let's go back to 19 Woman's then. What is the policy at Woman's Hospital
20 before performing an abortion pursuant to the medical 21 exception in Texas?

22 A. The policy was that we could perform an 23 abortion as long as it met the legal requirements at the 24 time. There were no restrictions other than those 25 placed by the law.

1 Q. Does the -- I'm asking about currently. At 2 Woman's Hospital, are you also required to check with 3 counsel prior to performing an abortion pursuant to the 4 medical exception?

5 A. My understanding, the last that I've heard, is 6 that we need to document in the chart, in the patient's
7 chart, that we believe that it is necessary in order to 8 keep -- to preserve the patients health; and we need to 9 have a second physician on staff at the hospital,
10 preferably a high-risk obstetrician, document the same.

11 Q. Is that a written policy?

12 A. I have not seen it in writing. I was advised
13 at a meeting.

14 Q. So going back to the patient that we were 15 talking about a few minutes ago, who was pregnant with 16 her second child and she had a body-stalk anomaly; is 17 that acc- -- did I say that correctly?

18 A. I believe so, yes.

19 Q. Body-stalk anomaly. Back to that patient, so
20 a second physician was not willing to sign off on the -- 21 that it was medically necessary for that patient to have 22 an abortion at Woman's Hospital. Is that accurate?

23 A. Yes.

24 Q. Setting aside that second physician, you -- as 25 the treating physician, were you willing to sign off in

1 the charts that an abortion was medically necessary for
2 that patient?

3 A. No.

4 Q. So both you and your colleague agreed that
5 this patient did not qualify for the medical exception
6 to Texas' abortion laws?

7 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

8 A. I was unsure. I had doubt.

9 Q (BY MR. STONE) Have there been any other --
10 strike that.

11 How long ago was -- how long ago --
12 strike that.

13 When was this decision made with respect
14 to the patient that we're talking about with the 15 body-stalk anomaly?

16 A. It's probably been about six months or more.

17 Q. Since the passage of S.B. 8, have there been 18 any patients at Woman's Hospital that you were willing 19 to sign off on their chart that they met the exception
20 to -- the medical exception to Texas' abortion laws?

21 A. None that I was involved in, no, and none that 22 I know of.

23 Q. Have you read the statutes creating the 24 medical exception to Texas' abortion laws?

25 A. I have.

1 Q. Other than reading the statutes themselves,
2 are you relying on any other sources for guidance as to
3 what qualifies under the medical exception?

4 A. The hospital attorneys.

5 Q. Has -- what is ACOG?

6 A. ACOG is the American College of OB/GYN.

7 Q. Have they issued any guidance to physicians in 8 Texas about what qualifies for the medical exception to
9 Texas' abortion laws?

10 A. Not that I'm aware of.

11 Q. What about the Texas Medical Association?

12 A. Not that I'm aware of.

13 Q. If they issued guidance, would that be
14 something -- explaining what the -- what conditions
15 might qualify under the medical exception to Texas'
16 abortion laws, would that be helpful to you?

17 A. To some degree.

18 Q. When you perform -- prior to S.B. 8, did you
19 perform abortions at Woman's Hospital?

20 A. Yes.

21 Q. Children's Hospital?

22 A. Yes.

23 Q. Methodist Hospital?

24 A. No, not that I can recall.

25 Q. Other than those three -- I'm sorry -- those

1 two hospitals, was there any other facility where you
2 performed abortions prior to S.B. 8?

3 A. Yes, St. Luke's Hospital and Planned
4 Parenthood and in my residency in North Carolina.

5 Q. Ah. I may have asked a question without any
6 time restrictions. So let me -- when did you stop -- do
7 you currently hold privileges at St. Luke's?

8 A. No.

9 Q. How long has it been since you held privileges
10 at St. Luke's?

11 A. I let them expire maybe a couple -- a few
12 years ago.

13 Q. Years ago. Okay.

14 And Planned Parenthood, is Planned
15 Parenthood still open, the facility that you previously
16 performed abortions at?

17 A. Yes.

18 Q. Do they still offer abortion services at that 19 facility?

20 A. Not that I'm aware of.

21 Q. So is it fair to say that since the passage
22 of S.B. 8, the reason that you have not performed an
23 abortion in Texas is because you have not had a case
24 that qualified for the medical exception at Woman's 25 Hospital or at Children's Hospital?

1 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

2 A. I have had a couple of cases that needed an
3 abortion; but due to the vagueness of the law, I did not
4 feel comfortable performing an abortion.

5 Q. (BY MR. STONE) Okay. How many cases,
6 approximately?

7 A. A handful, two that I can recall the details
8 of. I think there were maybe a couple of others.

9 Q. Let's talk about those two that you can recall
10 the details of. What was the circumstances in the first
11 case -- we'll call them Case One and Case Two.

12 What were the circumstances in Case One
13 that made you believe that it might qualify for the 14 medical exception to Texas' abortion laws?

15 A. Well, the case we talked about, because 16 the -- every pregnancy has risk; and the patient takes a
17 risk in the hopes of having a viable child. And since 18 that fetus did not have a chance of survival, there was 19 risk -- there's always risk -- without any potential
20 gain.

21 Q. In Case Number One, with the body-stalk
22 anomaly, in your opinion, did the -- did that involve
23 a life-threatening physical condition that, in your
24 reasonable medical judgment, regardless of the provision
25 of lifesaving medical treatment, would be incompatible

1 for life outside the womb for the fetus?

2 A. Could you repeat that?

3 Q. Sure. In your opinion, in Case Number One,
4 involving the body-stalk anomaly, did that involve a
5 severe fetal abnormality such that it was a
6 life-threatening physical condition that, in your
7 reasonable medical judgment, regardless of the 8 provision of lifesaving medical treatment, would have 9 been incompatible with life outside the womb for that 10 child?

11 A. Yes.

12 Q. If -- here's what I don't understand, Doctor:
13 If you were confused in Case Number One as to whether or 14 not it qualified for the medical exception to Texas'
15 abortion laws, why didn't you ask Woman's Hospital's
16 attorneys?

17 A. (No audible response.)

18 Q. Am I muted?

19 A. No.

20 Q. Oh, okay. You can hear me. Okay.

21 A. Was that the whole question?

22 Q. Yes.

23 A. Why didn't I ask the hospital's attorneys
24 for...

25 Q. If you were uncertain whether Case Number One

1 met the medical exception to Texas' abortion laws, why
2 didn't you ask Woman's Hospital's attorneys for 3 clarification?

4 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

5 A. Well, for one, they're the hospital's
6 attorneys and they are not my attorneys and I did not --
7 I do not have the means to go out and hire an attorney
8 every time I need to make a medical decision. And the 9 hospital attorneys might give me permission to do the 10 procedure, but they're not going to protect me or argue
11 my case if I am found -- or dragged into court if the 12 State wants to prosecute me for something they think
13 does not meet the qualifications or the requirements.

14 There's also a vigilante component. So
15 it's not just the State; it's also any person who gets 16 wind of the fact that an abortion was performed.

18 didn't check -- strike that.

19 Is it fair to say that you didn't ask the 20 hospital attorneys for Woman's Hospital whether or not
21 Case Number One qualified for the medical exception
22 because they wouldn't represent you if you were 23 subsequently prosecuted for violating Texas' abortion
24 laws?

25 A. That's one of many reasons.

1 Q. Okay. What were the -- what are the other
2 reasons?

3 A. I didn't have a maternal-fetal medicine
4 specialist willing to stick their neck out and document
5 that it was necessary, medically necessary.

6 Q. Why would you need an M -- when you say
7 "maternal-fetal medicine," can I call them "MFM"?

8 A. Sure.

9 Q. Why would it matter if an MFM was willing to 10 stick their neck out for you to ask -- strike that.

11 Have you ever asked counsel at Woman's 12 Hospital to provide you with guidance in any other cases
13 before?

14 MR. KABAT: Objection. I'm going to 15 instruct the witness not to answer and possibly reveal
16 the conversations she may or may not have had with her
17 hospital attorneys.

18 MR. STONE: I'm not asking for the
19 contents of the conversation. I'm asking if she's ever
20 consulted with them on a case before. It's privileged,
21 the contents of the communication, but not the existence
22 of the conversations.

23 MR. KABAT: If you'd like to, restate the 24 question in that way.

25 MR. STONE: Sure, sure.

1 Q (BY MR. STONE) Without disclosing the
2 contents of the conversations, have you ever consulted
3 with the attorneys for Woman's Hospital on a case in the 4 past?

5 A. Not directly, no.

6 Q. Why would an MFM not being willing to stick
7 their neck out and say that Case Number One was 8 medically necessary hinder you from consulting with the 9 attorneys at Woman's Hospital on whether or not, in 10 their opinion, it met the medical exception to Texas'
11 abortion laws?

12 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

13 A. Well, that was based on the guidance I had 14 received when S.B. 8 came out that the hospital
15 attorneys said that they would back us up or that they 16 would -- that the Hospital, itself, would support or 17 open the door to us performing an abortion if we had a 18 second consultant who was willing to document their 19 agreement with the decision.

20 MR. KABAT: Before we go any further, I
21 do want to --

22 MR. STONE: Yeah.

23 MR. KABAT: -- caution Dr. Karsan that
24 any communications that are with the hospital attorneys,
25 the substance of those communications are privileged and

1 should not be disclosed. And so I'm instructing you not
2 to answer any questions that go to the content of any
3 conversations you have had with the hospital attorneys,
4 either that they -- information they have told to you or
5 information --

6 THE WITNESS: Passed on to us by 7 leadership, yeah.

8 A. Sorry. That was a one step removed.

9 Q. (BY MR. STONE) I see. So the attorneys
10 didn't tell you this. Somebody else at the hospital
11 told you this?

12 A. The leadership at the hospital, the 13 administration.

14 Q. The leadership.

15 But going along with what Nicolas said,
16 in none of the questions I'm asking you do I want you to 17 tell me anything an attorney, you know, had -- told you,
18 okay, just to be clear. That information's going to be 19 privileged, and I'm not asking that specific -- for 20 that specific information in my questions. Do you
21 understand?

22 A. Yes.

23 Q. So other than -- other than an MFM not being 24 willing to stick their neck out to say that it was 25 medically necessary and the fact that the attorneys for

1 the hospital would not defend you if you were prosecuted
2 for violating Texas abortion laws, were there any other
3 reasons that you didn't check with the attorneys for 4 Woman's Hospital in Case Number One to determine whether
5 or not it met the medical exception to Texas' abortion
6 laws?

7 A. I also felt that it would potentially be less
8 of a barrier to try to expedite the care for the patient
9 and not take additional steps to delay her care since 10 the later an abortion is performed, the more risky it is 11 for the mother.

12 Q. But is it fair to say that you don't know how 13 long it would have taken for the hospital attorneys to 14 give you an answer, right?

15 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

16 A. I can only have an opinion based on prior 17 experience.

18 Q (BY MR. STONE) But didn't you testify earlier
19 that you hadn't actually directly consulted with the 20 attorneys at Woman's Hospital on any prior cases?

21 A. My prior experience is with the chain of 22 command, which is usually how this works in the 23 hospital. So I would go to the chief of obstetrics, who 24 would go to the CMO, who would then go to the attorneys.
25 Whenever we have a concern, we are to work through the

1 chain of command.

2 Q. And, in your prior experience, how long does
3 the -- how much of a delay is caused by having to work
4 through the bureaucracy of the chain of command?

5 A. A few days. Honestly, it was kind of a
6 Plan A/Plan B. I mean, if the patient hadn't been able 7 to find her own way and fund it, then I would have been 8 forced to pursue that.

9 Q. And who would have forced you to pursue it?

10 A. My ethics. I would say I'm in the minority in 11 being willing to fight for my patients. I'm probably in 12 the -- in the extreme.

13 Q. When you say that your ethics would have 14 forced you to -- strike that.

15 Okay. So in Case Number One, Plan A was 16 to do what?

17 A. To connect her with resources out of state to 18 support her in figuring out -- her and her partner in 19 figuring out how and where they could get the necessary
20 care.

21 Q. Ah. And did that patient eventually -- strike
22 that.

23 So the patient drove 14 hours to the 24 location where she had an abortion and 14 hours back.
25 So that is 28 hours in a car, right?

1 A. Yes.

2 Q. Okay. And how long after you presented Plan A
3 to the patient did she wait before getting the abortion?

4 A. I don't remember exactly, but it might have 5 been all done within a week. There was a delay because 6 she had kidney stones that she might need to be 7 hospitalized for.

8 Q. So Plan A took about a week; and Plan B could 9 have taken, based on your prior experience with the 10 bureaucracy of the chain of command at Woman's Hospital,
11 a couple of days. Is that accurate?

12 A. I would say --

13 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

14 THE WITNESS: Sorry.

15 A. I would say a few days, but that was just to 16 get clarification. That's not to have the procedure
17 scheduled and performed and completed.

18 Q (BY MR. STONE) Do you know how long it would 19 take, just if you know, between getting approval and 20 then scheduling and performing the abortion at Woman's 21 Hospital?

22 A. Typically, a few days.

23 Q. So it might have taken a few days to get
24 through the bureaucracy and then a few days to get it
25 scheduled and performed. Is that accurate?

1 A. I think that's fair.

2 Q. So, in your opinion -- strike that.

3 Did you present in Case -- the patient in 4 Case Number One with options, with Plan A and Plan B?

5 A. I told her that we could try to get it
6 approved, but I wasn't sure that we would get approval.

7 Q. What did she say when you told her that you
8 could try to get approval through the hospital, but you
9 weren't sure if you would get approval?

10 A. I -- I don't know that she said much. She --
11 I advised her to go ahead and start looking at her
12 options herself.

13 Q. So the patient never actually declined Plan B?

14 A. Not that I recall, no.

15 Q. Is that because -- strike that.

16 Let's talk about Case Number Two.

17 A. Okay.

18 Q. What do you recall about Case Number Two?

19 A. I was on call. I was called to the ER to see 20 a patient of one of my partner's who had come in 21 bleeding more than just spotting. She had reportedly 22 passed some clots, and she was 15 weeks pregnant. And 23 the ER physician had ordered an ultrasound, which 24 revealed a living 15-week fetus with anencephaly and a
25 large subchorionic hemorrhage.

1 Q. What was the word right before hemorrhage?

2 A. Subchorionic.

3 Q. And what does that mean?

4 A. It means that there was an area of bleeding
5 from the placenta that had accumulated outside the bag
6 that the fetus is in, the sac, the amniotic sac.

7 Q. Why did you think that Case Number Two might
8 qualify for the medical exception to Texas' abortion
9 laws?

10 A. Because the patient had an increased risk of 11 hemorrhage above that that any patient has and the fetus
12 had no possibility of survival.

13 Q. So would you agree that -- strike that.

14 When you say that the fetus had no
15 possibility of survival, do you mean that it had a
16 life-threatening physical condition that, in your
17 reasonable medical judgment, regardless of the provision
18 of lifesaving medical treatment, was incompatible with 19 life outside the womb?

20 A. Yes.

21 Q. So why didn't you perform -- strike that.

22 Were you willing to sign off on the 23 charts in Case Number Two that the patient met the

25 A. Yes.

1 Q. Did you, in fact, sign off on the medical
2 records for Case Number Two indicating that you believed
3 it met the medical exception to Texas' abortion laws?

4 A. I did not document it in the chart. I had
5 that conversation.

6 Q. Was there a second physician at Woman's
7 Hospital -- strike that.

8 Was Case Number Two at Woman's Hospital?

9 A. Yes, it was.

10 Q. Was there a second physician at Woman's
11 Hospital willing to sign off on the patient's chart
12 documenting that she met the medical exception to Texas'
13 abortion laws?

14 A. No.

15 Q. How many physicians did you speak with -- 16 sorry. Strike that.

17 How do you know that there wasn't a
18 second physician willing to sign off on Case Number Two?

19 A. I am confident of that because the physician
20 that I consulted with is the physician at our hospital
21 who takes care of the highest of the highest risk
22 patients and is involved in hospital leadership.

23 Q. So, for the record, because, you know, we're
24 just lawyers; we don't work in a hospital environment,
25 how does the process work when you consult with -- when

1 you say that you consulted with a physician on the case
2 at the hospital?

3 A. I asked for a maternal-fetal medicine consult
4 from this physician who is my go-to for my highest risk
5 patients because she's so responsive and proactive. And 6 she actually agreed to see the patient right then and 7 there, even though it was the weekend. I put the 8 patient in a wheelchair from the ER and took her up to 9 the ultrasound room, where the physician met me; and she 10 performed an ultrasound and provided her opinion.

11 Q. What was her -- was that when the patient
12 received the anencephaly diagnosis?

13 A. I shared the results of the radiology
14 ultrasound with her, so that's when she found out.

15 Q. Okay.

16 A. And shortly after, she went for another
17 ultrasound performed by the maternal-fetal medicine
18 specialist.

19 Q. Did you discuss with the -- well, who is the 20 MFM that we're talking about in Case Number Two?

21 A. Am I required to share that? It's part of the 22 patient's protected --

23 MR. KABAT: I'm going to request that she 24 not answer that unless we have a Protective Order in 25 place to make sure that confidential information like

1 that is governed by a Protective Order.

2 MR. STONE: So...(laughing.)

3 So we sent you a -- Nicolas, we sent you
4 a Protective Order last week. Have you guys had an
5 opportunity to review the Protective Order that we sent?

6 MR. KABAT: We're still reviewing it. If
7 you understand, Jonathan, we've had depositions. It's 8 also been a holiday weekend. So we're still in the 9 process of reviewing it. We also have to discuss it
10 with 15 individual Plaintiffs. So that, of course, will 11 take time; but we are promising to get back to you on 12 it.

13 MR. STONE: Okay.

14 Q. (BY MR. STONE) So let's call this -- we'll 15 just call them the physicians.

16 Okay. So did you speak with the MFM that 17 you were consulting with specifically about whether or 18 not Case Number Two met the medical exception to Texas'
19 abortion laws?

20 A. Yes.

21 Q. And what did that provider say?

22 A. That since the patient was not actively
23 hemorrhaging, that she did not feel that the patient
24 qualified.

25 Q. How did you respond when the MFM told you

1 that?

2 A. I don't know that I said anything. I mean,
3 what am I supposed to say? I mean, that -- I was 4 frustrated; but I didn't say or document anything to 5 that effect.

6 Q. Did you consult with any other providers
7 at Woman's Hospital to see if they thought that Case
8 Number Two would meet the medical exception to Texas'
9 abortion laws?

10 A. I did not. Since one opinion had already been 11 given and the facts of the case were not in question, it
12 didn't require a medical opinion.

13 Q. What do you mean, it didn't require a medical 14 opinion?

15 A. A medical opinion was already given, and I
16 didn't feel that I would get a different consultation
17 from any other physician.

18 Q. So you didn't feel like any other physician
19 at the hospital would have given you a different answer
20 as to whether Case Number Two would meet the medical 21 exception to Texas' abortion laws. Is that accurate?

22 A. Correct. It's very difficult for a general
23 OB/GYN, in particular, to go against the recommendations
24 of a maternal-fetal medicine and it was the weekend and 25 there weren't -- you know, there were only a certain

1 number of people available on call.

2 Q. Did you consult with the attorneys for Woman's 3 Hospital in Case Number Two to determine whether they
4 believed it met the medical exception?

5 A. I did not.

6 MR. KABAT: Objection.

7 I just always want to clarify before
8 these questions about her conversations or possible
9 consultations with attorneys to remind Dr. Karsan that 10 any conversations with the hospital attorneys, including
11 conversations that are mediated through the hospital
12 administrators, should be not -- should not be 13 disclosed, as privileged.

14 THE WITNESS: Thank you.

15 Q (BY MR. STONE) Did you send -- did you send 16 Case Number 2 up through Woman's Hospital's chain-of-17 command bureaucracy to check if anyone else thought that 18 it meet the medical exception to Texas' abortion laws?

19 A. I did not.

20 Q. In Case Number Two was it also a Plan A/
21 Plan B type situation, as was the case with Case
22 Number One?

23 A. Yes.

24 Q. In other words, in Case Number Two, if the 25 patient had any difficulty obtaining an abortion, then

1 you would have sent it up through the chain of command
2 to check with counsel to see if it would have qual- --
3 if they thought that it qualified?

4 A. Potentially, yes.

5 Q. Okay. Did you present Plan A and Plan B to 6 the patient in Case Number Two?

7 A. Yes, and Plan C.

8 Q. Oh, and what was Plan C?

9 A. To go home and come back if she starts
10 hemorrhaging and that I would provide her an abortion
11 on the spot.

12 Q. If -- so when you say "abortion on the spot,"
13 if she was hemorrhaging, would you still have needed a
14 second doctor to sign off on that at Woman's Hospital?

15 A. It depends how dire the situation was. I
16 mean, I would have tried to get that as quickly as I
17 could; but it wouldn't keep me from trying to save her
18 life.

19 Q. So if she was hemorrhaging and she came back,
20 you would perform an abortion regardless -- for her
21 regardless of whether a second physician signed off on 22 it, depending on the severity?

23 MR. KABAT: Objection. I think that's
24 not -- that's misstating her testimony.

25 A. I mean, yes, it would depend on -- this is a

1 very -- these can be very fluid situations. So it
2 would -- I would have to make a decision in the moment,
3 as we often do.

4 Q (BY MR. STONE) A decision on whether or not
5 to get a second signature?

6 A. Well, a decision how to proceed in the moment,
7 depending on the urgency of the clinical situation.

8 Q. Doctor, I'm confused. A moment ago you said
9 Plan C was that you would send her home and if she 10 started hemorrhaging, that she should come back and 11 you would perform an abortion on the spot, right?

12 A. That's what I said.

13 Q. Okay. Are you saying that it's actually 14 more nuanced than that; it would have depended on 15 presentation and other circumstances on whether or not 16 you would have performed an abortion on the spot?

17 A. Well, it depends how you define "on the spot."
18 I mean, there are times when we roll straight from the 19 ER to the OR because the patient's life is in imminent
20 danger in the moment; and there are more -- it's a
21 continuum. So, you know, I may make calls, make 22 consultations, as we are moving in that direction.

23 Q. Got it. So what do you mean when -- strike
24 that.

25 What did you mean when you said "on the

1 spot"?

2 A. At the -- when she came back to the hospital,
3 you know, on that admission.

4 Q. Okay. So at some point during that admission
5 is what you meant by "on the spot"?

6 A. Correct.

7 MR. STONE: We've been going for almost
8 an hour and a half. Do you mind if we take a quick
9 coffee break to refill and bathroom break, Doctor?

10 THE WITNESS: No, not at all.

11 MR. STONE: Okay. If it's okay with you
12 Nicolas, why don't we go off the record?

13 MR. KABAT: Sounds good.

14 THE REPORTER: We're going off the record
15 at 10:52 a.m.

16 (Off the record from 10:52 to 11:00 a.m.)

17 THE REPORTER: We're going back on the 18 record at 11:00 a.m.

19 Q (BY MR. STONE) In Case Number Two, did the 20 patient obtain an abortion?

21 A. I don't know.

22 Q. Other than Cases Number 1 and 2, are there any 23 other cases that you can recall the details of since the 24 passage of S.B. 8 where you believed a patient may have 25 qualified for the -- that you were treating at Woman's

1 Hospital, may have qualified for the medical exception
2 to Texas' abortion laws?

3 A. There may have been a couple of anomalies, but
4 none that had such pressing medical conditions.

5 Q. I want to share with you in the chat what I'm 6 marking as Exhibit A.

7 (Exhibit A marked.)

8 Q (BY MR. STONE) It's your affidavit in this
9 case. Do you see Exhibit A in the chat?

10 A. I'm pulling it up now.

11 Yes, I see it.

12 Q. I would like to start with a question about 13 Paragraph -- let me step back. Strike that.

14 Did you write Exhibit A?

15 A. It was -- it was the result of consultation
16 with my attorneys.

17 Q (BY MR. STONE) Did you -- and I don't want to 18 get into any of the contents of your conversations with 19 your attorneys. I'm just asking, like: Who drafted up
20 Exhibit A that has your signature on it?

21 A. I provided the content. The actual draft was 22 provided by legal counsel.

23 Q. Okay. I want to ask about Paragraph Number 8
24 on page 2 of Exhibit A. Could you turn to that and let 25 me know when you have it on the screen?

1 A. I'm looking at it.

2 Q. Okay. I want to ask about the first sentence.
3 Could you read the first sentence, since it's really
4 short, for the record?

5 A. Sure. "This uncertainty regarding Texas'
6 abortion bans has delayed or barred the provision of 7 important obstetrical care, including abortion care for 8 our patients, and put our patients' lives and health
9 (including their fertility) at risk."

10 Q. Have you delayed the provision of important
11 obstetric care to patients because of your uncertainty
12 about Texas' abortion ban -- sorry -- the medical
13 exception to Texas' abortion laws?

14 A. Yes.

15 Q. How many patients have you delayed the 16 provision of important obstetric care because of your 17 uncertainty about Texas' -- the medical exception to
18 Texas' abortion laws?

19 UNKNOWN SPEAKER: Do you want this shut?

20 THE WITNESS: Yes. Sorry.

21 Sorry. Somebody was closing my door. I
22 hadn't closed it all the way.

23 A. The two are the most -- the two cases we 24 discussed are the most clear-cut cases, in my mind.

25 Q. (BY MR. STONE) Okay. So let's talk about

1 Case Number One. How much of a delay did your
2 uncertainty about the medical exception to Texas'
3 abortion law result in the provision of important
4 obstetric care to the patient?

5 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

6 A. I would say a week or two, but that's only 7 because she could travel because she actually was able
8 to do that on her own without my assistance.

9 Q. (BY MR. STONE) I guess I'm confused because
10 didn't you testify that in Case Number One, the issue
11 was that a second physician, the MFM, was unwilling to 12 sign off in the medical records that the case met the 13 medical exception to Texas' abortion laws, right?

14 A. Correct.

15 Q. So how -- I guess I'm trying to understand:
16 Where's the week or two delay?

17 A. Previously, I would have scheduled the 18 procedure if the patient wished to proceed; and I would 19 have performed it here in Houston without her having to 20 make an appointment out of state, having to take the 21 time and expense of travelling. And I could have also 22 addressed the other surrounding issues, like her kidney 23 stones. It took that much time for her to make the 24 appointment, make the arrangements, and to go, none of 25 which she would have had to have done; she wouldn't have

1 had to get the same exact care elsewhere had there not
2 been than a concern about the abortion ban in Texas.

3 Q. I think I understand. Is the issue -- the 4 issue's the abortion ban, not the medical exception to 5 the abortion ban. Is that accurate as to what you're
6 describing here in Paragraph 8?

7 A. Well, the ban and the exceptions are very
8 unclear. I think there's a lot of confusion and fear.

9 Q. In Case Number Two, how long was the delay in 10 the provision of important obstetric care to the patient
11 due to the medical exception to Texas' abortion law?

12 A. I don't know since I did not have ongoing care
13 with that patient. That was an emergency call coverage
14 situation. All I know is that she could have gotten 15 care while she was there on that visit to the hospital,
16 and that did not happen. Therefore, she continued to 17 have a heightened risk for hemorrhage when she left the 18 hospital.

19 Q. I want to ask you about Paragraph Number 10 in 20 Exhibit A. It's short. Could you read it, for the 21 record, out loud?

22 A. You said Paragraph 10?

23 Q. Yes, ma'am -- or Doctor. I'm sorry.

24 A. "I have also personally treated pregnant
25 patients with emergent medical conditions since S.B. 8

1 took effect and consulted with colleagues about the care
2 of such patients. In my experience, an emergency [sic]
3 condition or emergency situation cannot be formulaically
4 defined and will always depend on the patient's unique
5 situation."

6 Q. So it's your opinion that the medical
7 exception cannot be -- to Texas' abortion laws cannot be
8 formulaically defined; is that correct?

9 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

10 Q. (BY MR. STONE) I'm sorry. I couldn't hear
11 your answer.

12 A. Yes.

13 Q. And just to remember, we're going to wait a 14 beat so that Nicolas has an opportunity to unmute and 15 object, okay?

16 What do you mean by "formulaically
17 defined"?

18 A. I mean that every situation is unique and 19 nuanced, that medical conditions are often a continuum;
20 and it's very difficult to put each one in a box.

21 Q. In your opinion, would it be impossible for 22 Texas to have an emergency medical condition definition
23 to its abortion laws?

24 A. I would say it would be very, very, very 25 difficult to have legislation that covered every

1 scenario.

2 Q. So would you agree that having a broad
3 definition -- strike that.

4 Do you agree with me that the medical
5 exception to Texas' abortion laws is written broadly?

6 A. Yes.

7 Q. And it can encompass a whole host of different
8 presentations that have -- that -- strike that.

9 It's written broadly enough to cover many
10 different scenarios or presentations that patients may 11 present with?

12 A. Or exclude --

13 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

14 THE WITNESS: Sorry.

15 A. Which is why it can also -- yes, which is why
16 it can also exclude a lot of situations, like not cover
17 but...

18 Q. (BY MR. STONE) So because it's written so
19 broadly, it excludes a lot of situations. Is that what 20 you're saying?

21 A. Well, I think it leaves room for confusion,
22 debate, liability.

23 Q. So you want -- so, ideally, we would have not 24 a -- strike that.

25 So, ideally, what we would want is a very

1 specific definition of "medical emergencies" in -- for
2 the medical exception to Texas' abortion laws. Is that
3 accurate?

4 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

5 A. Ideally, we would allow physicians to use
6 their medical judgment without fear of liability.

7 Q. (BY MR. STONE) And is it your testimony that 8 they can't use their medical judgment without fear of 9 liability if there's a broad definition of "medical 10 emergencies"?

11 A. Yes.

12 Q. So, conversely, would they not have the fear
13 of liability if there was a more specific definition of 14 "medical emergency"?

15 A. It's an impossible situation.

16 Q. Okay. So you want a definition of "medical 17 emergency" that is both broad but also specific, and 18 it's impossible to craft something like that. Is that 19 fair?

20 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

21 A. It's very, very, very difficult.

22 Q. (BY MR. STONE) Before we switch to a
23 different document, I want to -- well, let's finish with 24 this one.

25 So I want to ask about Paragraph 11 of

1 Exhibit A. Could you just read the first sentence out
2 loud?

3 A. Let me pull it up again.

4 Q. Okay.

5 A. I put it down so I could see people's faces.
6 So Paragraph 11.

7 Q. Yes, just the first sentence.

8 A. "Since Roe versus Wade was overturned, I have
9 treated patients with emergent medical conditions,
10 including patients carrying pregnancies with lethal
11 fetal conditions who need [sic] treatment for 12 complications like kidney stones, bipolar disorder, and
13 hemorrhage."

14 Q. So I had a couple of questions. Is the lethal
15 fetal condition the kidney stones?

16 A. No.

17 Q. Okay. So is it -- so -- I'm trying to parse
18 the sentence and understand it. So you've treated
19 patients with emergency medical conditions, including
20 patients who carry pregnancies with lethal fatal [sic]
21 conditions. Is that accurate?

22 [Indiscernible interruption.]

23 THE WITNESS: I'm so sorry. I don't know
24 how to turn that off. I gave my phone to my office
25 manager, but it's linked to my laptop. And since I

1 couldn't get on from the desktop, it's still sending
2 messages. I apologize.

3 MR. STONE: Yeah. No problem -- or the
4 court reporter can tell us if it's a problem if she's
5 having difficulty reading [sic.]

6 Q. (BY MR. STONE) I just wanted to parse this 7 sentence, but I didn't entirely understand it as 8 written.

9 So since Roe versus Wade was overturned,
10 you've treated patients with emergent medical 11 conditions, including patients carrying pregnancies
12 with lethal fetal conditions, right?

13 A. Right, but that's in addition. That's the 14 first part; but then, lethal fetal conditions who need
15 treatment for conditions or complications. So emergent
16 medical conditions are the kidney stones, bipolar
17 disorder, and hemorrhage.

18 Q. Okay. Okay. I see. So the emergent medical 19 conditions are kidney stones, bipolar disorder, and 20 hemorrhage; and, separately, those pregnancies also 21 involved a pregnancy with a lethal fetal condition,
22 correct?

23 A. Correct.

24 Q. Is it your -- is it your understanding of the 25 law that a lethal fetal condition, in and of itself,

1 does not qualify for the medical exception to Texas'
2 abortion laws?

3 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

4 A. I'm not certain. Again, I'm not an attorney;
5 and the language is confusing.

6 Q (BY MR. STONE) Right. I understand you're 7 not an attorney and I'm not asking for a legal
8 conclusion; but you determined in each of these cases
9 that these patients did not qualify for the medical
10 exception to Texas' abortion laws, right?

11 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

12 MR. STONE: State your objection.

13 MR. KABAT: I think it's
14 mischaracterizing her prior testimony.

15 Q (BY MR. STONE) Go ahead.

16 A. I think that the complicating factor is that 17 when a patient has a lethal fetal anomaly and they have 18 another condition where the treatment would be easier if 19 they weren't pregnant and they have no chance of gaining 20 a child from continuing that pregnancy, that it
21 complicates the treatment and makes the decision about 22 the pregnant -- continuing the pregnancy more
23 complicated. It's just another layer of complication
24 that confuses what's covered, what's not.

25 I mean, I think everybody would agree

1 that an uncomplicated pregnancy that then develops
2 kidney stones, I feel like we're all clear that that
3 does not meet the exception.

4 Q. So there's certain circum- -- there's certain
5 presentations that we're all clear on that they don't
6 meet the medical exception to Texas' abortion laws?

7 A. I think in the two extremes, it's clear; but
8 there's a large area in between that is very murky.

9 Q. Were the patients that you're talking about
10 in paragraph -- in this first sentence in Paragraph 11
11 in Exhibit A, were those patients that were in the gray
12 or murky area in between you just described?

13 A. Yes.

14 Q. In those cases, did you make a determination
15 as to whether or not the patient met the medical
16 exception to Texas' abortion laws?

17 A. I did not make a legal judgment. I decided to 18 avoid liability and look for alternative options for the 19 patient to get the care they needed.

20 Q. What do you mean by "legal judgment"?

21 A. I mean the possibility of being dragged into a
22 courtroom, missing work, having to pay for legal 23 representation and facing the risk of all those 24 consequences that we talked about previously.

25 Q. Do you think determining whether a patient

1 qualifies for the medical exception to Texas' abortion
2 laws is a medical judgment or a legal judgment?

3 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

4 A. I think it's a legal judgment. We're asked to 5 follow the law.

6 Q (BY MR. STONE) Are you familiar with EMTALA?

7 A. I am.

8 Q. What is EMTALA?

9 A. It has to do with emergency care. In my case,
10 I know it has to do with women in labor.

11 Q. Are there any other scenarios other than the 12 medical exception to Texas' abortion laws where you
13 believe you're called upon to make legal judgments?

14 A. Not in areas that I have found to be murky,
15 vague.

16 Q. If the medical exception to Texas' abortion
17 laws was reworded in a way that you found clearer, would 18 you still have to make a legal judgment, in your
19 opinion?

20 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

21 A. Could you -- could you re- -- repeat that 22 question?

23 Q (BY MR. STONE) Sure. No matter how the 24 medical exception to Texas' abortion laws is worded, do
25 you believe it would still require you to have to make a

1 legal judgment as to whether or not a patient qualified?

2 A. I think that there may be fewer confusing
3 situations. I think it's near impossible to assure that 4 there won't be some confusing or unclear cases.

5 Q. Okay. So -- strike that.

6 If the medical exception to Texas'
7 abortion laws was reworded in the manner that you're 8 seeking in this lawsuit, would you still be required to 9 make a legal judgment as to whether or not patients
10 qualified?

11 A. Potentially in some cases.

12 Q. Going back to Paragraph 11 of Exhibit A, in 13 the second sentence you say, "Before S.B. 8, I would 14 have offered abortion care to these patients. Now,
15 I...have to give them information about where to seek 16 abortion care out of state," right?

17 A. Yes.

18 Q. But isn't it fair to say that before the 19 passage of S.B. 8, you would have offered abortion care
20 to those patients but not under the medical exception to
21 Texas' abortion laws?

22 A. It was irrelevant. The exceptions were 23 irrelevant.

24 Q. I'm going to show you what I'm marking as 25 Exhibit B.

(Exhibit B marked.)

Q (BY MR. STONE) This is a copy of your verified Petition in the case. Just let me know when you're able to open it.

A. I'm downloading it now.

Q. Okay.

A. Okay. I've opened it.

Q. Could you turn to Paragraph 343 of Exhibit B?

A. Oh, gosh, can you give me a page number?

Q. Yeah, it's on page 71.

A. Okay. Getting there.

Okay. All right. Which paragraph?

Q. 343.

A. Okay. I have it in front of me.

Q. Excellent. Could you read it to yourself and let me know when you finish?

A. (Witness silently reading documenting.)

Okay. I've read it.

Q. Do you agree with the statement in your Complaint that the medical emergency exception to Texas' abortion laws is broader than the type of medical conditions that physicians would consider emergencies under, for example, EMTALA?

A. I believe so. I mean, the legal language sometimes trips me up; but I believe so.

1 Q. Do you agree that physicians every day have to
2 make decisions about whether a particular presentation
3 meets the definition of an emergency under EMTALA?

4 A. Really, that happens at the hospital more than 5 in our offices. So we're not as responsible for 6 following that, I guess. There are procedures and 7 protocols at the hospital that are in place to assure
8 that we don't go afoul of EMTALA.

9 Q. And is it similarly true that Woman's Hospital
10 has policies and procedures in place to ensure that you
11 don't run afoul of Texas' abortion laws?

12 A. I have not read any policies or procedures.
13 I'm assuming they have them. All I know is what I told 14 you previously that was shared with us about the trigger
15 ban.

16 Q. Okay. So let's read -- if you could, could 17 you read Paragraph 344 out loud for the record? It's 18 not very long.

19 A. Sure. "An analysis of Texas' Emergent Medical 20 Condition Exception and similar exceptions in other
21 states' abortion bans shows that Texas' language is 22 comparatively broad. Some states do not contain 23 'emergency,'" quote, unquote, "exceptions at all, but 24 only provide affirmative defenses to be used in 25 prosecutions. Some states do not explicitly exclude

1 ectopic pregnancies and/or treatment for miscarriage
2 from their definitions of abortion. Some states
3 mention," quote, "'impairment of a major bodily
4 function,'" quote, "but require such impairment to be,"
5 quote, "'irreversible' in addition to," quote,
6 "'substantial,' while...states limit their exception to 7 life-threatening conditions -- while other states limit
8 their exception to life-threatening conditions. And 9 some states require a second physician to confirm that 10 an exception applies."

11 Q. Now if I -- if I understand you correctly,
12 your contention is that it's a bad thing that the Texas
13 language is comparatively broad. Is that accurate?

14 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

15 A. I think it's a bad thing that physicians are 16 not being allowed to exercise their medical judgment
17 without fear of retribution.

18 Q. (BY MR. STONE) What does that mean, that they 19 cannot exercise their medical judgment without fear of 20 retribution?

21 A. Well, first of all, there's the vigilante
22 component of S.B. 8. So everybody and anybody can bring 23 a civil suit against a physician for providing an 24 abortion. And, secondly, the trigger ban penalties are 25 so extreme that it leads physicians to doubt their

1 judgment, not medically, but legally because no matter
2 what our medical judgment is, we are bound by the laws
3 of the state we live in.

4 Q. Would you agree with me that every medical 5 decision that you make has the potential to have
6 retribution in the form of medical malpractice lawsuits
7 or disciplinary action by the Texas Medical Board?

8 MR. KABAT: Objection, form.

9 A. In those situations, we are protected by the 10 standards of care as they are set forward from our 11 professional societies, and there is not legislation
12 that specifically makes those activities illegal.

13 Q (BY MR. STONE) So, yes, there's a potential
14 for retribution for every medical decision that you make 15 in the form of medical malpractice lawsuits or action by 16 the Texas Medical Board; but that's different than 17 abortion cases because they're illegal and there is a
18 criminal aspect to them. Is that fair?

19 A. Yes.

20 Q. What if a patient presented -- you know, what?
21 Let's -- sorry. I'm a little scattered, so strike all
22 that.

23 Could you read -- and this might be
24 the last time I ask you to read -- could you read
25 Paragraph 345 in Exhibit B out loud? I want to ask some

1 follow-up questions.

2 A. Okay. "Reading" --

3 MR. KABAT: Johnathan, I just want to 4 clarify before she reads it, there are footnotes to --
5 there were footnotes -- excuse me -- to Paragraph 344;
6 and it looks like there are footnotes to Paragraph 345.
7 You are not asking her to read those, but we are 8 agreeing that those are incorporated into what's being 9 read into the record?

10 MR. STONE: Sure, absolutely.

11 MR. KABAT: Okay.

12 A. Okay. "Reading the provisions of the 13 Emergency [sic] Medical Condition Exception together,
14 they permit physicians to provide an abortion to a
15 patient where, in the physician's good faith judgment,
16 the patient has a physical condition posing a risk
17 of death or a serious risk to the patient's health.
18 Such conditions include, but are not limited to, the 19 following: conditions that can lead to dangerous
20 bleeding or hemorrhage, including placental conditions;
21 dangerous forms of hypertension; conditions that can
22 lead to dangerous infection, including premature rupture
23 of membranes; and [sic] other medical conditions that 24 can become emergent during pregnancy, either because 25 being pregnant causes or exacerbates a chronic condition

1 or increases other health risks, or because treatment
2 for the chronic condition is unsafe while pregnant,"
3 open parentheses, "(with the exception of conditions
4 whose emergent nature stems from the risk of self-harm,
5 which are statutorily excluded); and certain fetal
6 conditions or diagnoses that can increase the risks to 7 a pregnant person's health such that, when combined with 8 the patient's other comorbidities, a patient's medical
9 provider may determine that the patient has an emergent
10 condition necessitating abortion."

11 Q. (BY MR. STONE) Would you agree with me that 12 that is a fairly straightforward definition?

13 A. Relatively.

14 Q. Applying that definition to Case Number One
15 that we discussed earlier, would Case Number One qualify
16 for the medical exception to Texas' abortion laws, as
17 described in Paragraph 345?

18 A. I mean, again, I have to -- that's a lot.

19 (Witness silently reading document.)

20 I don't think it's clear. I really don't 21 think it's clear.

22 (Witness silently reading document.)

23 Q. And so you're not sure if body-stalk anomaly
24 would fall under any of these -- under any of the 25 categories described in Paragraph 345?

1 A. I mean, you could argue either way. I could
2 argue it either way.

3 Q. Okay. Let's argue for. What is the argument
4 for it meeting -- for it falling under one of the 5 categories of 345?

6 A. So, as I said before, every pregnancy has 7 risks and this patient also had a kidney stone flare or 8 attack and she was carrying a fetus that did not have 9 any chance of survival. And the patient was taking on 10 these risks that every pregnancy has for no potential
11 gain, but that's not really spelled out here in this 12 exception.

13 Q. At the end of the exception, the final couple 14 of lines, it says, "...certain fetal conditions or 15 diagnoses that can increase the risks to a pregnant
16 person's health such as that -- such that, when combined
17 with the patient's other comorbidities, a patient's 18 medical provider may determine that the patient has an 19 emergent condition necessitating abortion." Do you
20 think it might fall under -- that Case Number One might 21 fall under -- under that category?

22 A. Again, there are arguments for and against. I
23 think it's very unclear.

24 Q. What would be the argument against the 25 Case Number One falling within any of the categories

1 described in Paragraph 345?

2 A. Well, it's -- you know, a lot of people would
3 argue that plenty of women take the risk of hemorrhage,
4 infection, premature rupture of membranes. Well, and 5 then you could argue that, for instance, in her case,
6 her kidney stones could be treated without terminating
7 the pregnancy and that the risks of those complications
8 from pregnancy were not significant enough to meet the 9 risk of -- oh, where does it say -- I mean, define --
10 oh, what's the word -- unsafe.

11 You know, driving a car is unsafe, in 12 some people's mind. So, you know, you can argue how 13 unsafe is unsafe enough to meet the qualifications, I
14 guess.

15 Q. How unsafe is unsafe enough to meet -- strike
16 that.

17 What about Case Number Two, do you
18 believe that Case Number Two would meet any of the 19 exceptions, categorical exceptions, described in 20 Paragraph 345 of Exhibit B?

21 A. That one I'm a little more comfortable with,
22 which is why I would have offered her an abortion if I
23 had gotten someone else to agree with me. But, again,
24 it can be called into question because maybe she will 25 hemorrhage; maybe she won't. What percentage risk of

1 hemorrhage is a high enough risk of dangerous -- quote,
2 unquote, "dangerous bleeding" or hemorrhage? You know,
3 is needing a transfusion dangerous enough; or is risk of 4 death danger- -- the qualifier for dangerous and what
5 percentage risk of death?

6 Q. Well, that's left to the individual
7 physician's good faith judgment, right?

8 A. And that of the Courts and the juries and the 9 legislators.

10 Q. But, Doctor, you use your judgment every day
11 in making medical decisions, right?

12 A. Yes, and I hope that I will not be prosecuted
13 for that.

14 Q. And sometimes physicians just reach different
15 conclusions based on their medical judgment, right?

16 A. Yes.

17 Q. Looking at Paragraph 345, it says, "Conditions
18 that could -- or can lead to dangerous bleeding or 19 hemorrhage." In --

20 A. Well it's a continuum, yeah. Sorry. I
21 interrupted you.

22 Q. Yeah. So in Case Number Two, I guess I'm 23 trying to understand the counterargument because it
24 seems to me if they had -- based on your prior 25 testimony, they had significantly increased risk of

1 hemorrhage, right, in Case Number Two?

2 A. Yes.

3 Q. So --

4 A. Above that of any other pregnancy or the 5 average pregnancy.

6 Q. Is a hemorrhage -- I mean, again, we're 7 lawyers, so help us out here; we're not physicians. Is 8 a hemorrhage during a pregnancy always dangerous?

9 A. Again, that depends how you define
10 "dangerous." Ten percent of deliveries will have a 11 hemorrhage. Probably one to maybe three percent of 12 deliveries will require a blood transfusion, which 13 has its own risks, although less than it used to be in 14 our -- at least in this country. And, you know, our 15 maternal mortality rate is the highest of any developed
16 country. So, you know, pregnancy, in and of itself, is 17 dangerous.

18 Q. So if you were trying to determine whether or 19 not -- strike that.

20 In Patient Number 2 -- sorry. Strike
21 that.

22 In Case Number Two, when evaluating the 23 patient, what sorts of things would you be looking for 24 to determine whether or not the patient's condition
25 involved a risk of -- that could lead to a dangerous

1 hemorrhage?

2 A. Well, there's a significant risk of hemorrhage
3 in any pregnancy beyond eight, nine weeks, I would say.
4 I discourage anyone having a miscarriage beyond eight
5 weeks to have a D&C so that they're not at home when --
6 when it happens. So that was my concern for that
7 patient; but since she wasn't actively bleeding when I
8 saw her, that was the reason the maternal-fetal medicine
9 said that I could not terminate the pregnancy at that
10 moment in time. But any pregnancy that is bleeding is a 11 threatened miscarriage, by definition, prior to 12 viability.

13 Q. Do you believe that Patient -- in your 14 opinion, did Patient Number 2 -- Patient -- strike all
15 that.

16 Do you believe that the patient in Case
17 Number Two had a condition that could lead to a
18 dangerous infection?

19 A. No.

20 Q. Okay. I've got about --

21 MR. STONE: Do you want to go off the 22 record?

23 MR. KABAT: Sure.

24 THE REPORTER: We're going off the record
25 at 11:54 a.m.

1 (Off the record from 11:54 to 12:01 p.m.)

2 THE REPORTER: We're back on the record
3 at 12:01 p.m.

4 Q (BY MR. STONE) Doctor, is it fair to say that
5 what you want out of this lawsuit is for Texas to create
6 a medical exception where it's left entirely up to the 7 medical provider to determine whether an abortion is 8 medically necessary pursuant to the standard of care?

9 A. That would be great.

10 Q. And is it your opinion that the laws that 11 exist right now doesn't accomplish that same goal?

12 A. Correct.

13 MR. STONE: I'll pass the witness.

14 MR. KABAT: Thank you, Johnathan. I have 15 no questions for the witness.

16 MR. STONE: Thank you so much,
17 Dr. Karsan. We really appreciate your help today.

18 THE WITNESS: Of course.

19 THE REPORTER: Counsel, would you please
20 state your orders on the record for the video and the 21 transcript?

22 MR. STONE: On our end, we would love to 23 get a rush order on the transcript and we just need a 24 digital copy and we also want a copy of the video as 25 well, please.

1 THE REPORTER: And by "rush," I need a
2 date certain, please.

3 MR. STONE: Oh, how soon could you get it
4 to us?

5 THE REPORTER: I mean, I can get it to
6 you by tomorrow; but there is an upcharge.

7 MR. STONE: How much of an upcharge?

8 THE REPORTER: That's out of my
9 wheelhouse.

10 MR. STONE: Oh, okay.

11 THE REPORTER: I would have to let you
12 talk to my office.

13 MR. STONE: Okay. Yeah, I don't want to 14 get in trouble; but I -- yeah, if we could get it
15 tomorrow, I think we would like that, ideally. So, yes,
16 I'm ordering it for tomorrow, please.

17 MR. KABAT: And, Ms. Cunningham,
18 Plaintiffs would also appreciate a copy of the rush
19 order and, of course, copies of the digital and final
20 transcript.

21 THE REPORTER: Do you need a copy of the 22 video?

23 MR. KABAT: Yes, please.

24 THE REPORTER: Okay. This concludes the 25 deposition at 12:04 p.m.
